Red Army Forces On Central Front Report Advance

Heavy Fighting West Of Kalinin—Germans Are Using Reserves

NAZI 'WINTER LINE' NOW HARD PRESSED

Report Rusian Forces Are Pushing Deep Into Smolensk Province

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

MOSCOW, Feb. 11.—Front-line Russian dispatches said today that Red army forces on the central front had advanced another six miles in a single day and that a Red army unit northeast of Moscow had slain 1,700 Germans in three days.

Heavy fighting was reported west of Kalinin, where the Germans were reported throwing reserves into battle to stem the Red army advance. Russian advices said the Soviets annihilated half a German ski battalion seeking to break through to some of their comrades who had been surrounded and that the rest of the Nazis scattered to a forest.

The Moscow radio said the Russian advance toward Smolensk, west of Moscow, is continuing and that four more villages had been recaptured on this front.

Dutch Naval Leader Heads Allied Forces

By JOHN R. HENRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The valiant Dutch were accorded a post in the unified command of the united nations today when Vice Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich of the Royal Netherlands Navy was elevated to the command of allied naval forces in the southwest Pacific, succeeding Admiral Thomas C. Hart, U. S. N.

Announcement of the shift was made by the navy department in Washington which stated that Adm. Hart was being relieved because of ill health. How long he will be out of service or the nature of his ailment were not disclosed.

Although there was every indication that the withdrawal of Adm. Hart from the high command was for the reasons stated, the elevation of Vice Admiral Helfrich was viewed in Washington as certain to have an ameliorating effect on the Dutch who have been resentful for some time because they were not accorded a high place in the unified allied command.

The man who will now be in complete charge of the grand strategy of Abda naval units in the southwest Pacific is famed as a submarine expert and is an enthusiastic adherent to the military theory that the best defense is offensive action.

Navy Experts Plan Salvage Of Normandie

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The navy prepared today to assemble a board of technical experts to study the problem of salvaging the $60,000,000 luxury liner Normandie, recently taken over by the navy as an auxiliary vessel and re-named the U. S. S. Lafayette.

The mammoth 83,423 ton craft lay on her side in 40 feet of water at her pier in the Hudson river, as a result of the disastrous fire that swept through her upper decks Monday.

Plans of the navy to salvage the vessel were not disclosed but in reply to reports that the ship was a total loss a spokesman declared: "The navy supports no such contention at this time."

Meanwhile the Federau Bureau of Investigation, the navy and other agencies conducted a thorough probe.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said his office had completed its investigation after examining 70 witnesses. "There is no evidence of sabotage," Hogan declared. "Carelessness has served the enemy with equal effectiveness."

The F.B.I. maintained strict silence regarding its findings.

TOO MANY FRILLS IN O. C. D. IS PROTEST

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt may go before the Senate appropriations committee, it developed today, to answer congressional charges that there is too much glamour, too many thrills and high salaries and too many dancers in her section of the Office of Civilian Defense.

In fact, she is expected to get an indirect invitation so broad that she may also bring her protege, Dancer Mayris Chaney, and Movie Star Melvin Douglas before the committee. It was the appointment of Miss Chaney to a $4,600 O. C. D. in Mrs. Roosevelt's section and the selection of Douglas as co-ordinator of artists and actors work in another division tha stirred up the congressional tempest.

D. O. DAVIES ACTS AS MAYOR TODAY

Both Mayor Charles Mayne And Director J. L. Fink Are Ill

For the first time since he has served as a city councilman, and he has occupied that capacity several times, Public Safety Director David O. Davies today performed the duties of mayor because of the illnes of Mayor Charles B. Mayne.

The finance director, James L. Fink, who at present is ill but resting easy in the Jameson Memorial hospital, always has acted as mayor whenever Mayor Charles B. Mayne could not.

However, because both Mayor Mayne and Finance Director Fink temporarily are incapacitated the duties today fell upon Davies who conducted police court at 9 a. m. Recently he was delegated to perform the duties of Director Fink pending his return to city hall.

None of the four men and one woman who had been arrested for having imbibed too freely of intoxicants last night received a fine or jail sentence.

One of the men who does not hold residence here was informed by Acting Mayor Davies that should the man again come before him in police court he could anticipate punishment

BELATED REPORT OF AERIAL BATTLE

Six Japanese Planes Shot Down In Battle With American Fliers

By JOSEPH A. BORS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Belatedly revealing details of a thrilling aerial dogfight in which six Japanese planes were shot out of the skies, Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reported a lull in land fighting on the Bataan Peninsula, but warned that a resumption of the Nipponese assault is expected momentarily.

At the same time MacArthur stated that there were only intermittent artillery exchanges between the guns of the American-held forts and concealed Japanese batteries—indicating that the defenders' counterfire has been effective.

The six Jap planes shot down were part of the seven reported in yesterday's communique, but at that time it was believed that the aircraft were victims of ground batteries.

U. S. Sends Note To Vichy France

IMPLIED WARNING GIVEN IN MESSAGE

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The United States, it was learned on high authority today, has sent a strong diplomatic note to the Vichy government of France concerning the French aid to the Axis forces of German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Libya.

The note is understood to express the American government's belief that France has exceeded its obligations under the terms of the armistice in sending motor trucks and food supplies to the Axis forces in northern Africa.

It carried an implied warning that unless Vichy puts a stop to such aid to the Axis, this government will find it necessary to reconsider its entire policy towards France and the French North African colonies with which trade relations were resumed only a short time ago.

DECISIVE PHASE BELIEVED NEAR

Heavy Jap Reinforcements Are Landed On Island Says Report

By S. A. WYKES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SINGAPORE, Feb. 11.—British and allied forces defending Singapore battled doggedly today against tremendous Japanese pressure as the conflict for possession of this island fortress approached its decisive phase.

In the past few hours the Japs, who previously outnumbered the defenders as much as 10 to one at some points, have received heavy new reinforcements from the Malayan mainland.

But the British Imperials, outmanned, outgunned and hammered by waves of enemy planes in control of the air, continued their bitter resistance and fought for every inch of space.

The fate of the island swung in the balance, however, as the Japanese hordes relentlessly pushed back the hard-fighting British troops.

(The London Daily Mail quoted Ian Fitchett official correspondent with the Australian forces at Singapore, as reporting that many observers believe the next 24 hours will decide the outcome on Singapore Island.

Dollar Day To Draw Throngs Thursday

In your haste to read the war news yesterday, perhaps you missed that little tome on Dollar Day which occurs Thursday, February 12, when over 40 merchants of New Castle will stage their bargain sales. So if you didn't read it yesterday we will repeat it again. Thursday, February 12, is Dollar Day in New Castle.

Merchants have been wielding the bargain axe with right good will for the past several days. Cost prices have been forgotten, future profits foregone and merchandise has been placed at price levels you can reach without a step ladder.

Double Duty For Dollars

Dollars will be on double duty Thursday. For one of those frog skins you can lug home more merchandise on Thursday than you can the next day for a lot more money. Its a day when the merchants go all out for bargains and a lot of shoppers will be all in from carrying packages.

There is this about Dollar Day: It isn't for just citizens of New Castle, it is for everybody in Lawrence county and to those thrifty shoppers in Mercer, Butler, Beaver and Mahoning counties the invitation is good also.

The advertisements tell the story succinctly and if you are wise you will turn to them right now and get a load of them. From aspirin tin zinc washboards the list goes on and on.

To paraphrase the air service slogan, "Keep 'Em Buyin'" and that is just what Dollar Day does, keeps the folks buying at prices they know they won't see again until the American soldiers and sailors do a rhumba in the public square of Tokio.

Oh yes, Thursday, February 12, is the day. It's Dollar Day, or did we mention that?

Governor Issues Formal Summons

Congressional Reapportionment To Be Chief Problem For Session

OTHER MATTERS MAY GET BEFORE SESSION

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—The general assembly will meet in war-time special session on February 17 to enact legislation on congressional reapportionment and problems arising out of the war.

The call for the first war-time session of the legislature since the World War days of 1917 was issued late yesterday by Gov. Arthur H. James. He asked the 258 legislators to meet at 3 p. m. and expressed the opinion that "all the business I can submit to them should take much less than a month."

The Republican chief executive included only two subjects in his call: Congressional reapportionment and a request for postponement of the 1941-approved act setting up a new parole system in Pennsylvania on June 1, 1942.

Other Action Likely

He left the way open, however, for the submission of other subjects by including in his call the phrase "such further subjects as I, by supplement to this proclamation, shall further designate for their consideration."

The governor said he did not know whether the supplemental call would be issued before or after the assembly convened. He had been advisd by Attorney General Claude T. Reno that he could issue the supplement after the session convened, although there is no record of any governor having done so. Former Governor George H. Earle issued several supplements to his call before the 1938 special session opened.

The general assembly has been in recess since July 17, 1941, and the next regular session will not be held until January 1943. Thus next week's extraordinary session was made necessary by the failure of the 1941 session to enact a congressional reapportionment law reducing the number of districts in the state from 34 to 33 in accordance with the 1940 census returns.

sity, who became the big boss of cilivian defense with the resignation of Mayor F .H. LaGuardia of New York.

Senator McKellar (D) Tenn., chairman of the sub-committee handling the House-approved $100,000,000 O. C. D. fund, said Mrs. Roosevelt would be welcome to appear and testify.

Sen. Mead (D) N. Y., close friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, went further in proposing exploration of the charges which kept the House in an uproar for two sessions and resulted in an amendment barring dancers, fan dancers and street shows from O. C. D. activities.

"I suggest that the appropriations committee give all a chance to be heard," he said. "Let's go into the matter of morale and see what the experience has been in England.

Could Bring Mrs. Roosevlt

"I would suggest that the head of the organization appear and be allowed to bring in any assistants he chooses. He could bring Mrs. Roosevelt or anyone else. We do not invite witnesses, but I would favor hearing Mrs. Roosevelt if she wants to be heard."

So it is possible that Mrs. Roosevelt, who declared she would be "perfectly delighted" to tell members of Congress the "truth" about appointment of Miss Chaney and Douglas, may appear with each flanked on her side.

Senate administration leaders sought to prevent a repetition of the uproarious debate which marked House consideration of the defense fund. They discouraged "raising a fuss" over charges of Mrs. Roosevelt appointing favorites, of "pinks" and frills in O. C. O. But the controversy would not down.

Too Much Comment

Sen. Glass (D) Va., 74-year-old chairman of the appropriations committee, was plainly nettled over the fight. He wouldn't comment on it.

"There's to damn much comment on everything," he ejaculated.

Sen. Holman (R) Ore., member of the appropriations committee and a stickler for economy, indicated he would pitch into the controversy.

"I think it would be very wholesome if Congress would put into practice without further delay the policy advocated by Woodrow Wilson during the last war of 'letting light into dark places,'" he said.

"There wasn't any idea that the civilian defense organization would go into social uplift. It is disheartening and discouraging to see confidence in the executive department violated in the detailed exercise of extraordinary powers Congress has granted in a spirit of unity."

Charge Excerpts From Hitler's Book Used By Aviatrix

Trial Of Laura Ingalls At Washington Brings Interesting Revelations

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Letters from Miss Laura Ingalls, noted aviatrix on trial for failure to register as a foreign agent, revealed in Federal district court today that she had used excerpts from Hitler's "My New Order" in her American First speeches.

"I am beginning to use excerpts from the black book," she wrote to Miss Julia Krauss in Washington, her intermediary between herself and Baron Von Gienath, second secretary of the German embassy. "I breathe inspiration from every paragraph."

Miss Krauss, on the witness stand, identified the "black book" as a reference to "My New Order."

Miss Ingalls, clad in a brown suit and jacket with wide brimmed hat, listened impassively to M. Neil Andrews, government counsel continue to question Miss Krauus on the many letters she had received from the aviatrix during October and November, 1941.

The letters told of Miss Ingalls' enthusiasm for her "America First" activities and revealed one contact with Baron Von Gienath—November 3. Miss Ingalls wrote that she was making speeches nearly every night during those months with Rep. Hamilton Fish, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, and John Cudahy, ex-ambassador to Belgium. She said that she had tried to get on the committee's payroll but failed. She received only travelling expenses.

"If I get low on cash," Miss Ingalls wrote as she prepared to make a lecture tour for America First, "I may send you an SOS for I am sure you are interested in supporting the cause as much as I am. Let your mother see this letter so she will know I don't write you secrets."

"Mother" was Miss Ingalls' code name for Baron Von Gienath, according to testimony yesterday.

In one of her letters she referred to Sen. Pepper (D) Fla., and administration supporters, as "sinister" and "a compound of a convict and Simon Legree."

He pointed out that the soldiers speak different languages, eat different food and use varying types of arm and ammunition.

Well Received

Dennis pointed out that Burma like China, depends heavily on imports and, with the exception of oil, is without war industries.

"No one has ever been more warmly welcomed than these Chinese comrades who have moved into Burma and are still moving in," he said in denying rumors that the Chinese had been greeted coldly, and that some of them had returned to China.

The Chinese contingents sent into Burma were declared to be well-seasoned, excellent troops.

Dennis laughed at reports that friction had arisen between members of the American volunteer pilots and Royal Air Force pilots defending Burmese skies.

"No one in Burma is able to speak highly enough of the work of the American volunteer flyers," he said. "Vice Air Marshal Stevenson claims their work is as good as the best work during the battle of Britain."

BRIEF LULL IN LAND FIGHTING IN PHILIPPINES

the enemy planes were victims of MacArthur's dwindling but still alert pursuit plane force.

MacArthur's report stated that the combat between American and Japanese fighters was "one of the most spectacular that has been waged in the Philippine campaign."

The small American air force was on a mission as an escort to a low-speed photographic trainer when the six Jap fighter planes appeared.

The observation plane landed, but the escorting fighters swept back and engaged the enemy instead of seeking shelter.

"A series of thrilling dogfights ensued," the communique added. "Four enemy fighters were immediately shot down."

The other two Jap victims were crippled, one of them crashing and the second one being destroyed by American artillery.

Official Communique

Following is the text of the war department's 101st communique:

"Philippine Theater—The savage fighting in Bataan, as well as enemy air activity, has appreciably lessened.

"However, movements of hostile reinforcements indicate early resumption of an attack in force against our positions.

"There were intermittent artillery exchanges between the guns of our fortifications and enemy batteries on the Cavite shore. Our counter-battery fire appears to have been effective.

"Gen. MacArthur has sent to the war department additional details of the aerial combat on February 9 in which several enemy planes were shot down. Several of our P-40 fighters were escorting a slow bi-plane trainer on a photographic mission over Cavite province when they encountered six enemy fighter planes.

"The ensuing combat was one of the most spectacular that has been waged in the Philippine campaign.

"Capt. Jesus Villamor, of the Philippine air force, who recently was awarded the distinguished service cross with oak leaf cluster for repeated acts of extraordinary heroism, was the pilot of the photographic plane and had landed when the enemy planes appeared.

"Our escorting fighters, instead of landing, vigorously engaged the enemy aircraft. A series of thrilling dog fights ensued. Four enemy fighters were immediately shot down. A fifth was crippled and veered off to the north, landing on an air field near Pilar where it was destroyed by our artillery.

"The sixth plane fell out of control and was ultimately found where it crashed in the mountains of Bataan. This accounted for all of the enemy planes engaged in the combat. One of our planes is missing.

"There is nothing to report from other areas."

U. S. SENDS NOTE TO VICHY FRANCE

aid to Rommel's forces concerning which this government received information from its own and British sources. They are:

1. Shipment of 50 Italian motor trucks from Toulon, French mainland port, to Tunisia in French North Africa from whence they were sent to Libya.

2. Departure of two Italian ships from a French port with grain and oil for Tripoli via French North Africa territorial waters.

3. Shipment of French wine from Tunisia to Libya.

Vichy admits the shipment of the Italian trucks and the French wine to Libya. However, the French contend that the trucks do not constitute contraband and assert most emphatically that no munitions or other actual implements of war have been sent from France to Rommel's forces. This information was brought to Under-secretary of State Sumner Welles yesterday by French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye.

French Attitude

The French are understood to feel that both the United States and Great Britain are making a mistake in attaching such importance to the small amount of materials that is reaching the Axis forces in Libya from France or French Tunisia.

The French assert they are under constant pressure from the Germans for closer collaboration, and claim they must make some small concessions if they are to avoid the danger of the Nazis occupying all of France.

They point out that Marshal Henri Petain has given his word that the French fleet and French North African bases will not be turned over to the Axis, and reminds this government that he has kept his word for 20 months in the face of strong pressure from Germany. The French further state that Petain intends to keep his word as long as possible. This, they feel, is the important thing, especially when the United Nations are facing difficulties on so many war fronts.

BRITISH BATTLE JAPS NORTH OF MARTABAN

Burma denied reports that the Japanese had "established bridgeheads" on the western banks of the Salween.)

Martaban lies directly across the wide Salween estuary from Moulmein, which the British recently evacuated in the face of the Japanese advance. Martaban is the terminus of a railway line leading to Rangoon.

Japanese bombers yesterday raided Thaton, 30 miles north of Martaban, while United Nations air forces bombed the Japanese field headquarters at Paan on the east bank of the Salween river 30 miles north of Moulmein.

There was no confirmation in Rangoon of Japanese claims that Martaban had been captured. A British communique denied that the Japanese crossing of the Salween had been carried out in force.

"Our troops have been in contact with a small enemy force north of Martaban," the communique said.

RED ARMY FORCES ON CENTRAL FRONT REPORT ADVANCE

paper Red Star, the Soviets on the Sevastopol front in the Crimea launched a sudden bayonet attack and advanced one mile. They captured an important hill outside the naval base and killed "many Germans," this account stated.

(A British radio broadcast heard by NBC said unofficial reports from Leningrad revealed the Germans outside that city are being attacked by the Leningrad garrison and also by Russian forces advancing from the east.)

The Soviet midnight war communique said that on Tuesday "our troops continued to fight their way forward and occupied several inhabited localities." It added that on Monday four German planes were destroyed.

Pressure On Winter Line

It appeared the Soviet offensive had resumed pressure on the Nazi "winter line" extending from Rzhev through Vyazma to Bryansk. This line already has been breached at some points but still is being defended fiercely by the Germans.

In the region where the Reds are besieging Rzhev and pushing deep into Smolensk Province, they have recaptured 35 towns and villages in the past two days, according to the newspaper Izvestia.

Reviewing Red army territorial gains since Nov. 29, when Rostov was recaptured, the communist newspaper Pravda said that up to Feb. 7 the Russians had liberated 80 large centers classified as cities and more than 4,800 towns and villages in all combat zones.

Swept Clean Of Nazis

Pravda said all of Moscow, Ryazan and Tula Provinces and most of Leningrad and Kalinin Provinces have been swept clean of the Nazis, adding that the Russians have "begun the liberation of Smolensk Province and the Ukraine."

"All places recaptured by our forces have been fortified immediately against counter-attack," the paper said. It hinted that the promised Nazi spring offensive will encounter rough going if it ever gets under way.

Hitler was reported throwing reinforcements into the Leningrad, Rzhev, Smolensk, Vyazma and Donetz Basin regions, and Soviet reports from these areas admitted that the Germans were putting up a stubborn struggle before retreating.

New York, Feb. 11.—In a desperate effort to hold Rzhev, pivot of their winter defense line, the Germans have thrown a fresh army corps into the battle there, the British radio reported today in a broadcast heard by N.B.C.

The Russians reported last week that Rzhev had been encircled Several days later, the British radio said Soviet troops already had occupied part of the city.

EXPECT AIR ATTACKS AGAINST PHILIPPINES WILL BE INCREASED

grown increasingly ominous even while MacArthur's forces smashed back waves of Japanese attacks and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy.

War analysts contend that the collapse of Singapore's aerial defenses has freed a large number of Japanese fighting planes for use against MacArthur's men and the four American-held island forts stretched across Manila Bay.

Position Serious

Also considered serious is the fact that enemy siege guns on the Cavite shore of Manila Bay have continued to blast MacArthur's forts despite "successful" counter-barrages.

That the war department also considers the defenders' position as serious was indicated when two communiques in a single day stressed the fact that the already-great odds against MacArthur's troops have increased.

In its 99th communique, the army stressed the "grim determination" of the defending forces, but pointed out significantly that "five veteran Japanese divisions," plus supporting troops and recent reinforcements "indicate the heavy odds against them."

Conservative military experts estimate the strength of a Japanese division at 15,000 to 20,000 men and place the total enemy force operating against MacArthur on Bataan Peninsula at 125,000. These are in addition to enemy forces in Manila and other Philippine areas.

Subsequently in an unexpected night communique the army again told of successful counter-blows by MacArthur's troops but took pains once more to state that "particularly heavy" reinforcements rushed in recently by Japan are making their presence "increasingly evident."

Organizing and passing resolutions isn't civilian defense. People don't click in emergency unless trained like football players.

MORE FINANCIAL AID FOR CHINA

THE House lost no time in voting the $500,000,000 appropriation for aid to China already authorized by Congress in response to President Roosevelt's recent request marked "urgent."

Previous loans to China were for the purpose of obtaining materials of war, which at that time could be transported without difficulty. This latest and largest credit is to rescue the recognized Chinese government from economic exhaustion and enable it to withstand growing internal doubts and discontent by supporting the stability of its currency and putting its finances in a firm position.

This loan follows the recommendations of our Treasury experts who visited China a few months ago, at the same time that Great Britain sent a similar mission there. Britain has now simultaneously advanced $200,000,000 to Free China, which has seen her foreign trade wiped out and her people suffering terrible privations.

There are defeatists in China, as elsewhere, and they will rush to the fore with proposals for acceptance of a negotiated peace should the Japanese block the vitally strategic Burma Road. Chinese morale may require no bolstering up in this crucial emergency, but our timely financial aid should have its psychological effect. For nearly five years the Chinese have defied and obstructed Japan's aggressions. If money will help China now, it will not be begrudged by the American people.

SEVEN MILLION BUY BONDS

For national defense and the conduct of the war the American public has been quick to respond in buying of Defense Bonds and Stamps. Since last May a total of $3,800,000,000 has been sold, Secretary Morgenthau reports.

The fact that almost 7,000,000 persons have purchased bonds is of the deepest significance. In any group as large as that it is certain that the majority does not consist of individuals who merely put current savings into bonds instead of seeking investment elsewhere. Far more than half of the 7,000,000 must be workers upon whom bond buying entails real sacrifice. With them the possession of a bond means doing without something else.

And this doing without, for the sake of the satisfaction of helping the government win the war, must become a habit with these and other millions. It is most encouraging to realize that January's receipts from bond and stamp sales represent almost half of the cost of the nation's war effort in that month.

Despite new and higher taxes, government borrowing from one source or another must exceed half the cost for the duration.

HE HAS WHAT IT TAKES

On many occasions since the dawn of the motor era the death knell of the Missouri mule—and, for that matter, all other mules, has been sounded. Profound thinkers have concluded, after having pondered the matter at great length, that there is no place in the modern scheme of things for the mule.

The mule is far from ornamental, it must be admitted, and does not lend himself readily to use as a household pet. There is no place for him on a bridle path or on the farm, except among the sharecroppers, whose means will not permit of mechanization.

And then, just when it seems inevitable that the mule shall pass from the picture along comes war. It is in time of war that the mule rises to the heights. This was so in 1917 and it is equally true today, even in the war of blitzkreigs and panzer divisions, the most highly mechanized conflict the world has ever known.

Now, as much as ever before, the mule is in demand, which is as might be expected. From time immemorial wars have been fought in mud, and when mud reaches a certain depth and consistency everything bogs down—everything, that is, but the mule, in whose bright lexicon there is no such word as fail. With the heart of a lion and sinews of steel, he strains and struggles and eventually emerges from the mud.

Experience has proved that when the going is bad the mule has what it takes. This fact explains why mules today bring the highest price in almost a quarter of a century.

WHEN FIRE ATTACKS

Civilian defense work is expanding fast. Throughout the country, and especially along the two coast lines, elaborate precautions are being taken to protect persons and property in the event of enemy attack from sea or air.

This is valuable work and must be continued and improved. However, it would be a grave error if we focused our attention so completely on the possibility of attack from without that we forget the dangers that exist within.

One of the principal of those dangers is that of fire. Fire threatens the lives of all. Fire threatens every man's property. And fire threatens the war production progress. At a time when material shortages are critical, and production for our military machine must be increased with unprecedented rapidity, the war against fire is the whole nation's war.

Each day fire takes a certain toll of destruction in this country. Some fires are spectacular, such as that which recently consumed thousands of tons of irreplaceable rubber at a tire factory. Others are barely noted, such as the fires which are quickly extinguished with a minimum of damage. But we must realize that all fires destroy something—that all fires require labor for repairs and rebuilding—that all fires consume resources.

Protection against "normal" fires should be as much a part of civilian defense as protection against the possibility of fires being started by incendiary invasion. Every community, no matter how small, should organize and train a volunteer fire unit and equip it adequately. That is the kind of work which will return tremendous dividends to the entire nation.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

VANDALISM BY CHILDREN UNPATRIOTIC

The other day I passed by a group of eleven children from eight to twelve years of age playing in front of a large vacant house. I noted with much distress that some of these children were jumping on the beautiful hedge about the spacious lawn and bearing down on it until it reached the ground. When I returned half an hour later some of the same children were still destroying that hedge, leaving it a wreck. Not one child of the group at either time attempted to restrain the destroyers.

From Good Homes

These were all well-dressed children and the homes for blocks around were fine residences near a large university. I concluded that these children came from good homes. Not an adult was in sight. No doubt the parents of these children did not know where they were.

One would like to believe that children from economically secure families would be among the best citizens of a city.

This destruction could not have happened had the parents made it a practice to know where their children were and if, moreover, the children had learned at home to have due regard for the possessions of other people.

Home Duties

Maybe some of their mothers, with the finest motives, were out collecting dues for the Red Cross, selling Defense Bonds or meeting with some relief society.

How grossly absurd that these children should be destroying their neighbor's home. This is a problem of civilian defense that the average mother in America has not awakened to: Cultivation of good citizenship in the tots and runabouts at home. Parents should train their children to create and not destroy. It's time that all parents with opportunities and education exercised basic patriotism in the proper training of their children, knowing always where these children are. With this restraint let there be more family affection and companionship.

Two persons were having lunch at a farm house in South Carolina recently, during the progress of certain anniversary celebrations. The farmer's wife cooked a couple of chickens, saying that the family could dine on the remains after the visitors had gone. But the hungry parsons wolfed the chickens bare.

Later the farmer was conducting his guests round the farm, when an old rooster commenced to crow lustily. "Seems mighty proud of himself," said one of the guests.

Good Taste

ATTAINING GLAMOUR

"I heard a woman whisper to another last night that I am pretty but that I lack glamour. How can I best acquire it?"—Ambitious.

Answer: Observe others closely. People who dress peculiarly and do peculiar things are almost invariably those who are so self-centered and self-satisfied that they fail to observe how people of good taste dress and act. While in public places they are so engrossed in their dreams that they really do not see those about them. At the movies they are making so many introspective comparisons of the emotions of the actors with those of themselves that they fail to perceive what the principal characters are wearing, how they are coiffed how they use their voices, how they pronounce their words. Glamour, like other talents, is the result of deep study—of turning one's mind outward toward others instead of inward toward oneself.

And there is the further factor of learning what is the correct dress or coiffure for just the right time of day or the right social function. This, too, can best be learned through observation.

See it to that your hair is always perfectly and becomingly arranged, that your nails are manicured and free of chipped polish, that your clothes are spotlessly clean and pressed. To be glamorous and chic you must at all times be perfectly groomed.

TAKING A LOAD OFF DAD'S MIND

The head of the house was reading a newspaper article very carefully. Presently he remarked to his wife: "Do you know, dear, I think there is something in what this article says—that the cleverness of the father often proves a stumbling-block to the son."

Identity Cards For All Males Predicted
Was Suggested By Hoover Before Emergency
Straw Vote On Capital Hill Shows Favor

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—The war undoubtedly is responsible for current demands that every adult human male in the United States be required to carry an identification card with him at all times and show it whenever called on to do so by some properly authorized official.

The plan was more or less urged in congress several years ago. I think it was suggested originally by Chief J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who has advocated universal fingerprinting for a long time. Finally several national lawmakers developed a favorable interest in the notion and tried to get it adopted.

No exciting emergency prevailed just then, however, to stimulate the campaign and presently it petered out.

Today, though, acceptance of the system looks like a possibility. It's talked on Capitol Hill by functionaries in the government's various executive setups and a good bit by the press and general public. Recently a straw poll was taken on the subject and the scheme scored a sizable majority.

The principal objection's based on the ground that such regimentation would be un-American. If it were proposed solely for application in the cases of unnaturalized foreigners, I don't believe there'd be any opposition to it whatever, but quite a few natives and Americans-by-adoption evidently sense a totalitarian tendency in compulsory registration of all of 'em—not merely as military conscription eligibles, but on general principles, regardless of age and everything else.

Makes Spotting Easier

Of course, the pro-identificationists' argument is that an enemy agents' difficult to spot if no credentials are needed by anybody. If one of 'em's challenged, he naturally says he's an Americen. And maybe he is, there are probably renegade natives whom hostile governments can suborn. Even an unnaturalized German or Italian may be hard to make sure of, if he speaks good United States. A Jap's more conspicuous, but he, too, can say that he was born here and is a loyal citizen. I know two or thre of 'em who, I verily believe, could say it truthfully. But how sort them out, with the means lacking to make 'em certify themselves?

Now, the fact is that a method exists by which an actual DEMAND can be created for identification cards.

A long while ago I lived for six years in the Argentine republic.

There, as in various other Latin-American countries, the police consider it one of their duties, not to compel, but to enable either a native or an alien resident to identify himself.

They issue to him, if he applies for it, and is O. K., a "cedula de identidad", or "ticket of identity".

He doesn't have to have it, but he wants one.

Suppose he goes into a strange bank, with a check to cash but nobody to underwrite his signature. Presenting that check at the tellers' window, he submits also his cedula de identidad, and that settles it. If his check's drawn on a solvent account, his title to his dough's established, and the teller forks it over, with only a preliminary glance at the cedula.

There are plenty of other cases in which easy identification is an immense convenience and that cedula invariably does the business.

How You Get It

Now, how do you go about geting one?

Well, you call at police headquarters. You give 'em all the information they ask for. They check up on it. Having verified it, they hand your cedula over to you.

It's a little leather-covered folder, adapted to fit into a vest pocket.

It contains your photograph, your signature, your right thumb-print and a few details as to your birth place and date and your occupation. The bank teller compares your signature on the check with your signature in the cedula, takes a squint at your mug in comparison with the cedula picture, probably doesn't bother about a thumb-print, and forthwith coughs up your specified number of pesos and centavos.

There's only one joker involved.

When you want a cedula you want it in a hurry, and the police can, if they chooses, take two or

Words Of Wisdom

Every young man would do well to remember that all successful business stands on the foundation of morality.—H. W. Beecher.

The World and the Mud Puddles

FREE ENTERPRISE THE AIM.

One lesson may be learned from this war. If it is well learned, victory will be permanent, and the fruits of peace will bloom eternally. It is this: Real progress can only come from the labor of free men.

How often we have heard that simple statement, anathema to dictators! It is anathema to them because they understand better than we ourselves exactly what it means. They know that their kind have slim pickings in a land of free men because free men will work to meet the demands of other free men. In a free country, government is merely an onlooker, demanding little except the power and wherewithal to enforce fair play.

Our whole system of free enterprise is founded on the demands of free men in a free country. When you as a private citizen demanded radios, you got them. When you demanded "horseless carriages" and the gasoline to run them, you got them. When you demanded electric lights, you got them. The same was true of a thousand other luxuries and necessities which have been as common as dirt. You expressed your demands by buying a new product the instant it was put on the market by some enterprising individual. You continued to express your demands by looking tirelessly for the best at the cheapest price. Millions of businesses and industries have successfully striven to bring the miracles of science and invention to you, the citizen. They are the same private enterprises that you have often booed and kicked around these many years.

Here is where you, Mr. Citizen, may learn the most precious lesson of this war. Private enterprise is seving you no longer. It is serving our government so that our country may survive in a world where most governments have directed the labor of the masses for many years toward nothing more productive than military power—the same years that American enterprise devoted to giving you a richer, fuller life.

In this world struggle we are of necessity building a gigantic movement, a gigantic military machine. Our free enterprise system is busy catching up with the slaves of the dictatorships. Until the war is terminated successfully, you will do without the pampering that you have received from free enterprise. It will probably do you good. While you are deprived of many of the products of industry, you will learn what free American enterprise did for you in the past. If the lessons sinks in deeply enough, you may even learn that if you ever want free enterprise back, you will have to make it possible for it to come back.

The requisites of its return are few, but they will require the same toughness that is required to win the war. First, the evil of uncontrolled bureaucracy will have to be crushed. Second, the burden of taxation will have to be equitably distributed and a long-range program adopted to save this country from bankruptcy. Third, and most important, is the realization that we cannot maintain representative government without free enterprise—that unless free men can direct their energies to the betterment of life for other free men, as in the past, they will automatically be directed to the building of a big government.

A permanent big government with millions of employees would spell the end of free men, free enterprise, free opportunity, representative government—the end of things that millions of American men are preparing to fight and die for in every corner of the world.

PATRIOTIC

I shall be very brave I think,
To make the Navy's forces stronger
And quicker the enemy to sink
I'll use a golf ball three rounds longer.
A patriot, too! While others die
Or give themselves to meet disaster
To save my tires I'll vow that I,
Than fifty miles, will drive no faster.
When sirens shriek and church bells ring
At blackout time, I'll burn a taper
And I'll not waste a single thing
Of tin and iron, and wrapping paper.
Oh, all these hardships I will bear
Nor ever once complain about them.
And should the wife want things to wear
I'll try to make her go without them.

It's graft, of a mean sort, which I don't call commendable, but the point is that nearly all cedula-seekers fall for it, indicating that the system isn't resented; it's willingly paid for, I got one.

Why don't we put it on that basis, instead of imposing it as something totalitarian?

Alf Landon Is White House Caller Today

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Wearing an old slouch hat and puffing at a pipe, Alf Landon came to Washington today to pay a friendly call on President Roosevelt, deliver a "Lincoln Day" address tonight, and make a few remarks about Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn in the interim.

Landon, former governor of Kansas and the 1936 GOP presidential nominee, called at the White House as a gesture to show the world that Americans can still talk and fight politics and yet be united behind the war effort.

About the war, Landon had this to say:

"We've got a job to do and we're going to do it."

He added that was the feeling of the people in the midwest.

BRITISH BATTLE DESPERATELY TO HOLD SINGAPORE

Fitchett said, "it is unlikely the defenders will be able to loosen the Japanese grip."

(Meanwhile, NBC picked up a Tokyo radio broadcast claiming that "the entire island of Singapore has been placed under control of the Japanese air force." NBC also heard a British broadcast which said the Japanese "have the advantage of being able to direct a continuous stream of bombers and fighters from the (Malayan) air bases."

("Never before were heavier odds placed against our men," this British broadcast said. "With the causeway temporarily repaired, the Japanese will be able to pour in reinforcements and tanks.")

Singapore Island was enveloped in acrid smoke rising from explosions of bombs and shells as bitter fighting progressed. The Japanese kept hurling themselves in waves against the hard-pressed British Iraperial lines without regard to the casualties they suffered.

Huge Jap Force

As the battle rolled closer to Singapore city, an eye-witness account from the northwest sector said the Japs apparently were throwing their entire south Malayan force of some 125,000 troops on the island in an all-out effort for a speedy victory.

This account said these Japanese forces "already have suffered the most severe casualties," but at some points the defending troops were outnumbered 10 to one.

Most of the Nipponese reinforcements were swarming ashore around the Kranji river estuary where the invaders won a bridgehead three and a half miles wide.

As Prime Minister Winston Churchill had promised, the island was being defended inch by inch. But the struggle was an unequal one, particularly in view of the Japanese numerical superiority in the air.

Japanese infiltrations of the British lines near the western and northern coasts and steady hammering by Jap artillery and dive-bombers were the factors that compelled the defenders to withdraw.

But front-line dispatches cited the "same old story" in the air—lack of adequate Imperial air support to fight off the flocks of Japanese dive-bombers that blasted the defense positions without cessation.

In the path of the invaders the defense forces were applying for the first time the "scorched earth" policy to Singapore Island itself.

Oil tanks were blown up and rubber and pineapple warehouses were set on fire.

Some Successes

London, Feb. 11.—"Some measure of success" in British counter-attacks against overwhelmingly superior Japanese forces on Singapore Island was reported by an official military commentator today although officials admitted the situation was still extremely critical.

Contrary to Japanese claims, it was asserted, the causeway linking Singapore Island with Malaya has not been repaired, but the enemy is still landing reinforcements by sea.

Officials had no further comment and no wish to speculate in the absence of direct word.

Experienced war correspondents and other observers were greatly worried, however, over the delay in issuance of the usual Singapore communique, which is ordinarily received in London about 11:30 a. m. (6:30 a. m. EWT). It had not arrived at 2 p. m.

Listening stations at this hour were able to pick up occasional snatches of the Singapore announcer's voice, but the report was fragmentary and so badly blotted out by static that it was virtually unintelligible.

At 12:30 p. m. (7:30 a. m. EWT), general indications in London were that the Japanese were being pushed back toward the Sungei Kranji-Sungei-Jarong line from which the Imperial forces withdrew on Monday.

Another counter-attack was believed to have been launched between Sungei Mandi and Sungei Kranji. (EDITOR'S NOTE: Sungei is the native name for river.)

"While the situation is undoubtedly most serious," the commentator said, "it has not deteriorated in any way since Tuesday."

Against this British picture, an unconfirmed report originating from Tokyo claimed that the invaders had penetrated the western section of Singapore city itself.

Warn Civilians Of Military Planes

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Civilians were warned today by the War department to stay clear of military planes—friendly or hostile—which might crash or be forced down because such craft may contain deadly explosives.

Non-military personnel who see or learn about a military airplane accident should report it immediately to local police or other law-enforcement agencies, the army said.

Police or other local officials should, in turn, notify the nearest army air force station, meanwhile guarding the wreckage against molestation.

"In any event, warning should be given to persons in the vicinity that the airplane may contain explosives," the War department advised

Special Session Will Cost State About $250,000

Second Special Session During Regime Of Governor Arthur James

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—The forthcoming special session of the legislature—the 22nd extraordinary session since 1791—will cost the commonwealth at least $250,000, Gov. Arthur H. James estimated today.

In addition to postage and mileage allotments, the 258 legislators will receive $500 if the session lasts less than 30 days and another $250 if the session lasts longer. Approximately $100,000 of the estimated total will be required for salaries of legislative clerks, printing, binding, and incidental costs.

The special session is the second since Governor James took office in 1939, the first being convened in May, 1940 to appropriate $71,850,000 to continue the relief program. The session lasted eight days.

Longest special session was the 183-day meeting in 1883 when Gov. Robert E. Pattison convened the legislators to apportion the state into representative and senatorial districts. The shortest session was a two-day meeting in 1797 when the legislators met at Philadelphia and approved legislation for a militia of 10,000 men, regulated bankruptcy, and made an appropriation to fight "malignant fever".

A five-day session, the shortest that can be held under the present constitution, convened in 1936 to enact unemployment compensation legislation.

Johnstown Girl Air Patrol Pilot

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Feb. 11.—Lois A. Turner, 17, Johnstown high school senior, is one of the first women, and probably the youngest, to be accepted by the U. S. Army as a civil air patrol pilot. She soon will begin duties as aerial taxi pilot for army officers, and civilian patrol leader in the district.

When Miss Turner received her solo license two years ago she was the youngest airplane pilot in the country. She now has over 50 solo hours and many miles of cross-country flying to her credit.

Daughter of a Methodist minister, she is reported to be the most popular flier at the Ebensburg airport, her "home field," where she is employed as dispatcher—quite a big job at the present time.

Upon graduating this spring Lois, who says flying is much easier and safer than automobile driving, intends to devote all her time to a flying career. Eventually, she hopes to become an instructor or flying demonstrator for an aircraft supply company.

Until then, however, she's "in the army."

Governor Makes Direct Appeal To President

Long-Standing Dispute Over U. S. Social Security Board Reaches Climax

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 11—The long-standing dispute between the James administration and the U. S. Social Security Board today reached a climax as Gov. Arthur H. James appealed directly to President Roosevelt to override the Federal Agency.

In a telegram to the President, the Republican State executive stated, "Pennsylvania today was notified by the Social Security Board that further Federal allocations for administering unemployment compensation will not be granted. Since no state appropriations for this purpose are available and since the entire framework of the law would have to be changed to permit state operation, the effect of the Social Security Board's action is to stop all unemployment compensation in Pennsylvania."

Consequently, continued Governor James, he asked the President to suspend "for the duration of the present emergency" an order issued by the board halting further grants until the state agreed to issue a ruling giving state employes dismissed by the Governor the right of public appeal.

Such a ruling would have to be handed down by the State's Attorney General, Claude T. Reno, and Governor James remarked yesterday that "I'm not asking the Attorney General to hand down an opinion when a gun is placed to his head." A 1941-enacted law gives the Governor the right to dismiss summarily Civil Service employes of the unemployment compensation bureau, an authority the chief executive previously held over Civil Service employes of the Liquor Control Board and Department of Public assistance.

Long At Odds

The Social Security Board and the James Administration have been continually at odds over administration of jobless insurance funds, which now total more than $210,000,000. The latest dispute threatens another payless payday next Friday for 1600 state employes. In mid-January the $105,000 two-week payroll was delayed for several days because of the same dispute. An attempt was made Monday at Washington to settle the dispute in a conference between board and state officials.

Charging that the board was acting in a "bureaucratic" manner, Governor James asked the President to direct the federal agency that "if they do find it necessary to interfere with state operations they act only "where actual and tangible instances exist" that an employe or recipient of unemployment compensation has been injured.

In that event, continued the Governor, the Board should be required by the President to "assume its proper responsibility for seeing that the unemployed, who apparently in Pennsylvania are lined up to be the innocent victims of the Social Security Board's stratagems and devices do not thereby suffer."

The Governor charged that the board's executive secretary had approved, "in conferenec with me," the provisions of the law to which the board was now objecting.

"Everything about this case reenforces the conviction that the social security board seeks to establish regulation by rule, in place of regulation by law," asserted the Governor. "My administration and all Pennsylvania have attempted to respond wholeheartedy to your call for unity in this time of national crisis. It is a sorry return for our attempted cooperation that one federal agency is trying to settle its private feuds in the dust raised by the war."

Recognition Given Sergt. Lockard

Timely, Though Unheeded Warning At Hawaii Of Japs Approach, Gets Award

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The army's records of World War II gave official recognition and reward today to Staff Sgt. Joseph L. Lockard of Williamsport, Pa., for his timely though unheeded warning that Japanese planes were approaching Pearl Harbor for the surprise attack last Dec. 7.

In a communique the war department disclosed the award of the distinguished service medal to the soldier who first detected the approach of a "large force" of planes at 7:02 a. m. on the fateful day, but whose warning was brushed aside by an officer until the attack started 53 minutes later.

Already promoted from private to sergeant for "exceptionally meritorious service", Lockard, in addition to the medal has been designated to attend the officers candidate school at Fort Monmouth, N. J., beginning March 13.

Without attempting to explain the reason the warning was ignored, the army paid tribute to Lockard because he voluntarily remained on duty at the aircraft detecting service.

'Keep Fit' Slogan For Y.M.C.A. Member Drive

"Keep Fit for Service at Home and in the Armed Forces" today was announced as the slogan for the annual membership drive of the New Castle Y. M. C. A., which will be staged during the month of March.

General Secretary Robert L. Meermans said that, because of the war, the campaign will take on greater importance this year.

Four boys' teams will launch their campaigning at a noon luncheon Saturday, February 21. The 16 men's division teams will open their drive Tuesday evening, March 3.

Meermans said special rates both for boys and men, effective throughout March, will be one of the star offerings of the 1942 solicitation, and he said the entire drive will continue through all of March.

Report meetings of the two divisions will be held in the "Y" the nights of March 10 and 17.

Announcement of the general chairman for the drive will be made tomorrow, General Secretary Meermans said. He said the complete personnel has been drafted and will be made known within a few days.

Hawaii Now On The Alert

Ceaseless Preparations For Any New Attack On Outpost Being Made

CONSTANT VIGIL BEING MAINTAINED

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HONOLULU, Feb. 11.—Hawaii is on the alert.

Ceaseless preparations to meet any new Japanese attack on this great American outpost in the mid-Pacific are proceeding with clock-like efficiency.

The thrum of powerful U. S. army and navy planes zooming over Honolulu, across Oahu Island and out to sea is heard constantly, day and night. The sight of plane formations streaking across the sky has become so commonplace the civilians pay little attention.

Sometimes, at night, while the city is blacked out and hushed, huge searchlights suddenly stab the sky, their powerful lights probing for a plane that has failed to establish its identity. It could be an enemy plane, but invariably is one of our own planes returning from sea patrol over the wrong lane.

Vigil Is Constant

The vigil is constant, 24 hours a day. The whir of the planes has a reassuring effect.

In Honolulu proper, daytime activities are normal, crowds moving through the streets much as usual. But, at night, when the city is completely blacked out, the threat of a possible attack is borne home to all. Armed guards at intersections wave their blue-rimmed flashlights in the dark, challenging all motorists as they poke along the highways at 10 miles an hour. Only those on necessary business venture out after dark.

Up in the hills and cliffs of Oahu Island, our guns are in position—the noses of the shore batteries aimed toward the sea and our anti-aircraft batteries pointed upward. It is no military secret that our manpower and weapons have been augmented since the treacherous Jap attack on December 7 on Pearl Harbor.

There is visual evidence of this. Everywhere on the island you see our young and aggressive looking troops. They are as busy as beavers, drilling, camouflaging their positions, checking up their ammunition, indulding in gun practice, strengthening fortifications and performing other soldierly duties.

"Can Hold Islands"

They are intent upon making good the flat declaration of T. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding general of the Hawaiian department, that "We can hold these islands."

All this is apart from the seething activity of the augmented forces of the navy in and near Pearl Harbor.

Newspaper correspondents and photographers were given a close-up of army preparations on Oahu Island during a conducted tour over a large portion of the island's 155-mile coast line.

We were taken up into the hills overlooking the sea and given an idea of the thoroughness with which the army is preparing to do its part in the defense of the island. The highlight of the trip was a demonstration of the efficiency of our shore batteries in action, firing their shells to designated points from three to eight miles at sea.

An attentive audience of reporters and photographers stood just back of the howitzers as they let loose their death-dealing shells. Nearly all the shells were chalk-marked with arrows and the word "Japan".

The men down in the pit beside the guns wore steel helmets and blue overalls over their army uniforms.

Orders to Fire

A field artillery captain stood on a ridge and, through a microphone, barked staccato orders. He first ordered his men to their guns. He ordered that the elevation be checked, the target sighted. He announced that "No. 1 gun" would fire six times at one-minute intervals.

The muzzle of the "No. 1 gun" moved upward and was pointed out over intervening trees.

"Ready!" he shouted. There was a moment's pause. And then came the command, "Fire!"

The 155-millimeter cannon let go a six-inch 96-pound shell with a deafening blast.

Reporters and photographers were instructed to keep their mouths open when the gun was fired—and they did. Otherwise the concussion might break their ear drums.

The earth quaked as the detonation broke the stillness of the day.

Again and again—with methodical efficiency—the howitzer let go.

A fire detection center, back in the hills from where the gun was stationed, gave the target.

After the demonstration we were taken to a camouflaged dugout. There we found the observer who had plotted the explosion of the shell, recorded the point of impact and had sent back to the battery commander a report so he could check the accuracy of the firing.

The observer said the gun had been firing at a range of 8,225 yards. It required only 23.2 seconds for the shell to reach its target after it left the mouth of the howitzer.

Urges Americans To Wake Up To War Situation

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Asserting that "this war is not in the bag by any means," Rep. Faddis (D) Pa., urged the American people to "get rid of their smug complacency".

"The nation is taking victory for granted," he said during an address in the house. "The people are content to sing and dance their way to success. But wars are not won that way."

Attributing the "indifference" of Americans, to the Russian victories and the stand of Gen. MacArthur, Faddis said that the "fact that the actual theater of war is far removed, has lulled us into a comatose state of smug complacency".

"This nation is facing the most desperate situation in its history," he told the house, and added that "a greater effort is needed, on the part of Americans, to see that everything is done to give arms to the troops which must go to the front."

The chief fault in government is the theory that $10,000 paid to a $600 man makes a $10,000 executive.

Correspondent For China Press Will Discuss Alaska, Panama, And Pacific

Don Bate, globe-trotting newspaper man who has just recently returned from a personal inspection of bases and fighting equipment in Alaska, Panama and defense posts guarding the Panama canal, will be the next speaker of the Executives club on Tuesday evening, February 24.

When Germany occupied the Rhineland in 1936, Don Bate was in Berlin, covering European news for the China Press. He wrote at that time, "It looks to me as if this may be another world war." He sped at once to Paris, where he found the French determined to fight Hitler, then on to England, to find the English were committed to appeasement. In addition to circling the globe twice, crossing the Pacific eight times, he has been in South America, the Orient, Russia and the chief European countries.

Witness Says Aviatrix Lauded Leader Of Nazis

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—A government witness testified in federal district court Tuesday that Miss Laura Ingalls, famous aviatrix, "glorified in headlines proclaiming Hitler victories," and declared that the Nazi leader was "a man to be admired."

The witness, Miss Gloria Tucker, Stockton, Cal., Chamber of Commerce hostess, said that the woman flyer told her in a meeting April 19, 1940, that "it would be better if we had more men like Hitler in this country."

Miss Ingalls has been indicted for failure to register under the Foreign Agents Registration Act, and the government has charged that she was "a missionary for Germany, trying to prepare America for the arrival of Hitler." The defense claims Miss Ingalls was trying to "ingratiate herself into confidence of the German government," to obtain information for this country.

Mrs. Aline Rohnie, New York artist and flyer, followed Miss Tucker to the stand. Mrs. Rohnie, who has engaged in volunteer work for English flyers, testified that the defendant told her last summer that "she was very much opposed to my views."

Defense-Speeded College Program May Be Permanent

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11. — The defense-speeded college program adopted by many of the nation's leading schools will be a permanent feature, in the opinion of Dr. Fred Pierce Corson, president of Dickinson college.

"The good old days of the independent college are gone forever and the accelerated program of education has become a permanent feature," Dr Corson declared in an address to the College Presidents Association of Pennsylvania.

Calling for collaboration with secondary schools and state departments of education on standards and requirements for the new three-year course, Dr. Corson observed:

"We can remove the parasitic growths which have attached themselves to the curricula of both secondary and higher education and open the way for the student of ability to advance according to his personal ability rather than by the slower method of group ability."

Why should a man stop smoking when he can feel so virtuous by saying loudly: "I'm going to quit."

Army Flier Has Plenty Of Luck

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11.—The luck of Lieut. Garth B. Jared, 26, Army pilot, appeared to be holding Tuesday.

Last November his training plane crashed in high tension wires near Woodland and he escaped with his life.

While he was flying a P-40 type pursuit plane over San Pablo Bay, it collided with one piloted by Lieut. Robert P. Montgomery, 26, of Bethlehem, Pa., as they both maneuvered to change formation.

Lieut. Montgomery managed to right his ship and limp home to a landing at his base at Hamilton Field.

Lieut. Jared however, was forced to bail out as his plane started to fall. He landed in the Bay and was picked up by a coast guard crash boat.

C.I.O. Unions Seek Wage Increases

Two Largest Are Seeking Wage Boosts Of Around $400,000,000 Yearly

HENDERSON OPPOSES PAY RAISES NOW

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Moving against wishes of government leaders, two of the largest C.I.O. unions today are fighting for wage increases totaling between $322,000,000 and $450,000,000 a year.

The unions are the Steel Workers Organizing Committee headed by C.I.O. President Phil Murray and the United Automobile Workers led by R. J. Thomas. Their demands for $1-a-day wage increases in key plants in the steel and auto industries, coupled with a statement by Federal Price Control Administrator Leon Henderson that he was opposed to blanket pay raises at this time, are putting Murray himself and President Roosevelt's new war labor board "on the spot."

Henderson, according to his office, appeared before the W.L.B. to ask the board not to recommend any blanket wage increases such as the $1-a-day boost the C.I.O. is demanding in the plants of Bethlehem, Republic, Inland and Youngstown Sheet and Tube steel companies.

Seek Blanket Increases

A dispute between General Motors corporation and the U.A.W. over a $1-a-day pay increase in G.M. plants also is expected to wind up before the board soon. The demands on G.M. and the steel firms are the forerunners of a drive for blanket increases throughout the steel and auto industries.

It was estimated that a $1-a-day increase for workers in the two industries would cost $322,400,000 on the basis of a five-day week, and $451,360,000 on the basis of a seven-day week.

Henderson told the war labor board that granting of blanket pay increases at this time would contribute to inflation. He pointed out that the pay envelopes of workers already are fatter because of longer hours and overtime pay.

The C.I.O. unions, keenly disappointed over Henderson's statements, maintain the wage increases are necessary to meet soaring costs of living. Their spokesmen also pointed out that the nation's railroad workers and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union received substantial pay increases just before the outbreak of the war. They argued, too, that profits are increasing.

The price administrator, it was learned, might withdraw his objections if the money obtained through pay increases could be kept out of circulation by diverting it to defense bonds or some mandatory savings system.

Knitting Needed War Production Official Says

Mrs. Robert Garland, Red Cross Knitting Chairman, Has Question Cleared

In response to numerous inquiries regarding the knitting program of the Red Cross, Mrs. Robert M. Garland, chairman of the Lawrence county chapter knitting committee, conferred with R. R. Guthrie, chief of the textiles, clothing and leather good branch of the war production board. Mrs. Garland asked Mr. Guthrie to express the war production board's attitude on the question of women knitting sweaters for soldiers and sailors.

"The war production board does want women to knit sweaters where absolutely needed by the armed forces and where the commanding officers ask for the supplies," stated Mr. Guthrie.

"It is our opinion that the average soldier and sailor is adequately clothed by the government and doesn't need additional clothing. However, there are exceptions. Our boys in Iceland are such an exception. They can make good use of additional clothing. The same may be true of boys sent into the field in long campaigns.

"On the whole, we don't want a broad wave of knitting that will consume millions of pounds of wool that is needed for more essential purposes.

"This is the system we have set up with the Red Cross. When a commanding officer demands such additional clothing as sweaters he will apply to the Red Cross. The Red Cross will then arrange for the sweaters to be knitted.

"In this way, every sweater knitted will serve a good purpose and there will be no waste of material, to say nothing of the labor of some patriotic woman. We welcome the cooperation of women in knitting for the armed services the things they need, after the commanding officers have advised the Red Cross of these needs."

This is from the report made by Mr. Guthrie to Mrs. Garland. Yarn has been received by the chapter and will be given out to meet the quota already set up by the war production board for the Lawrence county chapter. There will be no new groups formed, as all the old auxiliaries will be kept busy until such time as an emergency may arise and the army and navy contact the Red Cross with further demands.

Wheat Growers Will Ballot On Marketing Quotas

Saturday, May 2, Is Date Set By Wickard For Wheat Referendum

Pennsylvania wheat growers, together with wheat farmers throughout the nation, will again, this year vote on wheat marketing quotas for the second successive year. According to information received by the Lawrence County Agricultural Conservation committee, Secretary of agriculture, Claude R. Wickard, has set Saturday, May 2, 1942, as the date for the wheat referendum.

Quotas were proclaimed on the 1942 crop last July when it became apparent that 1942-43 wheat supplies would far exceed the marketing quota level set by law. However, to be placed in effect, quotas must have the approval of two-thirds of the wheat farmers voting in a national referendum. Farmers throughout the nation voted approval of quotas on the 1941 crop by an 81 per cent majority. In Pennsylvania a majority of the wheat growers voted against the quotas However, by reason of the federal wheat loans made available to farmers as the result of the adoption of the wheat marketing quotas, farmers everywhere have received such a favorable market price for their 1941 crop of wheat, it is felt the wheat growers in Pennsylvania and in a few other states, where the last year's vote was not favorable, will give serious consideration this year to all the facts surrounding the entire marketing quota situation.

Quotas Helped Prices

Under the agricultural adjustment act, if wheat marketing quotas are disapproved nationally, wheat loans may not be made available to growers by the Commodity Credit Corporation. However, with the adoption of quotas for the 1941 crop, wheat loans were made available and, as a result, Pennsylvania farmers who had cooperated in the wheat allotment program were not forced to sell their crop at harvest time but were able to place the wheat in storage and secure a loan from the Commodity Credit Corporation on the basis of $1.15 per bushel for No. 2 red winter wheat As a result 462,929 bushels of wheat were stored on farms and in government-approved warehouses in Pennsylvania for a total loan value of $529,000.

The quota program remains essentially the same as that in operation in 1941. Quotas do not apply to farms on which the acreage planted to wheat for harvest is not more than 15 acres nor to farms on which normal production of the acreage planted to wheat is less than 200 bushels. Excess wheat, unless stored under bond, is subject to a penalty of 50 per cent of the basic loan rate.

The supply of wheat in 1942-43 is estimated to be 1,428 million bushels on the basis of a July 1, 1942, carryover of 635 million bushels and a 1942 crop of 793 million bushels, which includes a preliminary estimate for 1942 winter wheat of 631 million bushels and average production for spring wheat of 162 million bushels. This is the greatest supply on record, nearly 100 million bushels more than a year ago.

Safety Meeting Held Last Night

Secretary Of Labor Unable To Come To Address Session At High School

OTHER SPEAKERS STRESS SAFETY

"An hour lost by accident's here is an hour gained by the axis," Ross D. Rosenberger told an audience of industrial men Tuesday night in the senior high school at the safety rally sponsored by the Committee for the Conservation of Man Power in Defense Industries.

The statement about summed up the meeting, for the idea back of it was to spur interest in industrial safety to the end that every man hour can count in the production of war materials.

Judge John G. Lamoree was the chairman of the meeting and was introduced by Ross Kirkpatrick, chairman of the committee sponsoring the meeting. Opening the meeting, W. O. "Red" Williams directed the singing of America and Rev. John J. McIlvaine, pastor of First Presbyterian church, pronounced the invocation. Preceding the meeting the high school orchestra presented a program of numbers directed by Joe F. Replogle.

Harry Immel, chief of the injection bureau of the Department of Labor and Industry, was the first speaker. He recounted the work of his department in promoting safety and congratulated the industries in this district for their safety records.

Mr. Rosenberger was the second speaker and pointed out what carelessness in industry colud easily mean in defense. He also pointed out that safety meant the elimination of waste materials, of care in discussing military rumors, of slowing down production. "One of the best ways to help Hitler in this war is to waste time at our daily tasks," said he.

Russell Greenlee, director of training for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, was the last speaker and he reviewed the methods now in force in industry for the promotion of safety. "Engineering, Education and Enforcement" are the three E's that make for genuine safety, said Mr. Greenlee.

Secretary of Labor and Inrustry Lewis J. Hines and Ross M. Leffler, chairman of the committee for western Pennsylvania were to have been at the meeting but were detained, Mr. Hines by official duties and Mr. Leffler by sickness.

Local industry was represented as were the industries of Ellwood City.

Recall Lincoln In Today's Crisis

Same Problems Confronted Lincoln As Are Manifest In World Today

If he were alive today, Abraham Lincoln would admonish the American people to strive for victory by making the United States a glorious example of true democracy at work. This is the theme of the 15th of a series of "Speak Up for Democracy" program to be heard at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday, February 11.

With the announcement that Charles M. Marshall has been selected to deliver the Lincoln Day message, Commander Marshall of V. F. W. Post No. 315 emphasized the similarity of circumstances which prevail today and those which confronted Lincoln when he became the 16th president of the United States.

The V. F. W. "Speak Up for Democracy" program was inaugurated in December, 1940, under the direction of the national department of Americanism of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

IMMORTAL WORDS OF 1863 AGAIN MARK IDEALS, GOAL OF UNITED STATES AT WAR

"Peace Eternal in a Nation United" is the hope set forth by the Eternal Peace Light monument, above, on the Gettysburg battlefield, where President Abraham Lincoln, inset, made his famous address.

By MARI YANOFSKY
Central Press Correspondent

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 11—This year, Abraham Lincoln's birthday is more than just a "legal holiday."

To America it is a rededication of all the principles for which the man stood.

To the rest of the world it is a reassurance of the vital importance of liberty and unity in American hearts and a solemn promise that those requisites of a free people shall continue on American soil.

Lincoln and Gettysburg—one cannot separate those two words.

If there is any American name of a place that connotes both liberty and unity it is Gettysburg. Gettysburg—where freedom's ties were sorely tried, yet strengthened anew by the valor of the men from the South and the North. Here a weary, but inspired President Lincoln uttered those never-to-be-forgotten words, "All men are created equal." Here the ideal that equality must mean freedom from any kind of bondage met and passed its crisis, and with that concept came a greater unity that never since has been threatened.

Unity

At Gettysburg, in simple, straightforward words, a man recognized by all nations as one of the greatest who ever lived expressed the hopes of a people who had known well the perils of a divided nation, but were now of one thought—unity.

What happened at the Battle of Gettysburg, which some historians consider the turning point of the Civil war, brought about a moral renascence for America. There came a rebirth of American ideals and policies, a union of not only the North and the South, but of the East and West as one great nation—"indivisible, with freedom and justice for all."

The Blue and the Gray, colors of the quarreling factions, were blended together once and for all under the red, white and blue of the American flag. The American desire for peace was in the heart of every man, regardless of the location of his native state.

On November 19, 1863, President Lincoln dedicated the cemetery at Gettysburg with his memorable address. A little more than three months after the noise of gun fire had ceased at Gettysburg, he said in 272 words what the whole nation was feeling, words that today retain their full meaning. Much of his speech might well have been repeated at Flander's Field, such as" —we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract.

"Devotion"

"It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave their last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain."

Still another part of his speech is appropriate today to the spirit to which America firmly will cling in the face of threats of foreign isms. It is those final words of Lincoln's address" . . .and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Gettysburg, in south - central Pennsylvania, is only a few hours' drive from Philadelphia, home of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Gettysburg is the historic highlight on U. S. route 30 (Lincoln Highway) which traverses the southern area of the Keystone state. Coming from Pittsburgh on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the traveler can leave that road at Breezewood, a short distance east of Bedford and continue on Route 30 to the national shrine.

A monument marks the spot on which President Lincoln stood when he gave his immortal speech. Other monuments represent various states, and there are numerous statues of war leaders.

Peace

Another monument, simple, but impressive, bears the words, "Peace Eternal in a Nation United." This is the Eternal Peace Light manument, which was dedicated on Independence Day, 1938, by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in honor of the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. At that time 1,845 veterans from many states, both Union and Confederate, gathered in their first united meeting and maybe their last; their numbers are decreasing fast.

Some of them were spry and anxious to speak of the old days; others were quiet and reticent and more willing to let dead memories be forgotten. They were no longer the Blue and the Gray, except perhaps in uniform, but all were gray with years.

But from that meeting of a new America with the old, of young Americans with the aged, came a renewed declaration of peace to keep the American guiding light of peace forever burning and, like the one on that simple monument, a light that never shall fail.

Americans will revere that light on Lincoln's birthday this year.

Senatus Romanus Club Initiation

Senior High School Honorary Latin Club Has Interesting Session Tuesday Night

Practically the full membership of Senatus Romanus, the Senior high school honorary Latin club, assembled in the vocal music room of the school on Tuesday evening for the initiation of its new members. This ceremony followed a business meeting with the Consul Prima, Anita Sacco, presiding.

Margaret Clement as able chairman of the initiation committee introduced each initiate by name. For this part of the ceremony the club room had been darkened except for a taper in the hand of the mistress of ceremonies and another in the hand of the candidate, which thus impressively illuminated each new face. Meanwhile Alfred Apicelli was standing nearby as bearer of the American flag to which each candidate in turn with candle still in hand pledged his allegiance with a Latin version of the familiar wording. Following this he then faced the club and recited a pledge of loyalty to its activities and its ideals. Finally after each initiate had been given a probationary card to be displayed in school hours until the next meeting of the club, the entire group of candidates, faces and candle flames in concentric arcs, sang a stanza of America in Latin.

The regular members admitted were the honor students in Latin from the Latin classes of the senior high school and the George Washington junior-senior high school. The two "summa cum laude" students from the Caesar classes were: Mary Kathryn Hogan and Mary Eleanor Shoaff. The "magna cum laude" candidates were Julia Ferguson and Arthur Bergland. The "cum laude" group from the same classes were Donald Huddle, Hartzell Huston and Madeline Grushetsky.

All the Cicero students who won honors for the year's course were already members of the club. So they were not initiated.

A new group of members have been added to the club this year by amendment to the constitution. They are called "socii" and consist of all Vergil students who have maintained an average of "B" or above for a semester, who have not been admitted as regular members by reason of high standing in the "honors" examinations. These initiates on Tuesday night were as follows: from the Vergil A class, Joseph Dianna, William Eakin, Ann Kutz, and Mildred Shoaf; from the Vergil B class, Patricia Brown, Betty Jane Cassachia, Ellanor Chapman and Lois Leach.

Following the initiation ceremonies simple refreshments were enjoyed. The meeting closed with a cordial speech of welcome to the new members and of appreciation for past cooperation to the old ones, from the Consul Prima, Anita Sacco. She then introduced the officers to the newcomers: Fred Rentz Jr., Counsul Secundus; Guy Gribble, Scriba; and Larry Attisano Quaestor.

FRED V. BROWN HAS LEG BROKEN

Assistant City Assessor Frederick V. Brown of 209 Lincoln avenue was taken to the Jameson Memorial hospital Monday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, after he had slipped on the icy pavement on Highland avenue, between Lincoln and Wallace avenues.

Examination at the hospital revealed a fracture of the right leg.

Hillsville Has Defense Rally

C. N. Shingledecker Is Named Chief Air Raid Warden By Pritchard

At a meeting of Mahoning township citizens last evening in the Mahoning Township Consolidated School at Hillsville, citizens of that community were told of the different units necessary in a co-ordinated defense setup for their community, and C. N. Shingledecker was named chief air raid warden of his district by County Air Raid Chief Edward D. Pritchard.

John Verlotto, of the township school board, introduced Mr. Pritchard, who presided, and who called upon Burgess Carl Montgomery, of Bessemer, coordinator of the midwest section of the county, to explain how Bessemer had effected its defense organization. Charles E. Allen, Assistant Chief of the Air Raid Warning service, which is manned by the American Legion, told of the requirements of this service. Frank W. Hill, secretary of the County Defense Council told of the different services necessary to be established.

Miss Edna Jane Usselton, of Edenburg, rendered several patriotic numbers, which were well received, and the meeting closed with her leading in "God Bless America." She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clarence Jones.

PILES—Get Relief Now

Millions of sufferers in the last 30 years have found a way to get quick relief from the itching and smarting of piles. They use a delightful cooling, soothing and astringent formula—Peterson's Ointment. No wonder one sufferer writes: "The itching and smarting were relieved, and I slept all night. Peterson's Ointment is marvelous." 35c a box, all druggists, 60c in tube with applicator. Money back if not delighted.

Will Crack Down On Drunken Driving

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 11.—Erie county is going to "crack down" on drunken driving, according to Assistant District Attorney Damian McLaughlin, who blames "boom times" for the unusually high number of drinking cases listed for February term of court.

"The only way to cut down on drunken driving cases," he said, "is for the court to mete out stiff penalties, both fines and jail terms."

Fifteen drunken driving cases head the list of 75 cases slated for the court at its February session.

CONFIDENCE... AND Victory!

WITH grim but quiet determination the people of the United States and Canada carry in their minds and hearts the conviction of complete and final Victory over the enemies of freedom.

This will to win and to hold fast to their chosen way of life is reflected by nearly seventy million people throughout these two countries who continue to maintain their life assurance because they know it is the best means of ensuring future economic security for themselves and their families. Their confidence serves a dual purpose, for their savings have also made possible the great investments of the life companies in the National Defense and Victory loans of our North American democracies.

Party Harmony Is Not Probable

Race For Governor In Pennsylvania May Develop Some Fireworks

SEE FRICTION IN BOTH PARTIES

By JOHN PAGET
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—Despite assurance of party harmony, there was little evidence today that the 1942 race for governor would be without the characteristic fireworks that mark Pennsylvania's pre-primary maneuverings.

While the Republican state committee has not yet indicated its selection for the May 19 primary, U. S. Sen. James J. Davis has expressed his "willingness" to be the G.O.P. candidate. On the Democratic side, U.S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey has announced that he will disclose his candidate at the meeting of the Democratic state committee at Harrisburg.

Guffey, long at odds with a few of the party's leaders, is reported ready to announce support for Allegheny Common Pleas Judge Ralph H. Smith for the gubernatorial post and ignore the ambitions of Auditor General F. Clair Ross—considered by some members of his party to be the "No. 1 Democrat in Pennsylvania."

It is no secret in political circles that Ross has long cherished a desire to climax his public career with the governorship and has spent much time in traveling over the state contacting county leaders.

Rebuked By Guffey

In fact, Guffey rebuked Ross and charged that he has attempted to cement committeemen into a "Ross-for-Governor" bloc by placing 65 of the members on the state payroll.

"I am opposed," declared Guffey, "to 65 members of the state committee who are on the state payroll dictating to the 2,200,000 enrolled Democrats in Pennsylvania who the nominee should be."

Smith was a candidate for lieutenant-governor in the 1938 primary on a ticket headed by former Lieut.-Gov. Thomas Kennedy and backed by Guffey. A rift developed between Smith and the Pittsburgh Democratic delegation headed by National Committeeman David L. Lawrence, but the breach was spanned when both men supported Mayor Cornelius D. Scully for re-election.

On the other hand, Meredith Meyers, Democratic state chairman, has predicted that the candidates will be Ross and Dr. Luther A. Harr, secretary of banking during the Earle administration. Ex-Gov. George H. Earle stated he was "out of politics for the duration," after Lawrence started a boom for a second term in the governor's chair.

Threat From Davis

The Republicans are faced again with a threat from Senator Davis that he would consider entering the gubernatorial race. Davis, who served as secretary of labor under three presidents, has never enjoyed the support of the regular G.O.P. state committe during thre senate campaigns. His term expires in 1945.

Regular Republican leaders have reportedly concluded a quiet canvass of local leaders to measure support for Maj. Gen. Edward Martin, former commander of the 28th Division, and now attached to Fifth Corps headquarters at Ft. Hayes, Columbus, O.

Martin, G.O.P. state chairman from 1928 to 1934, has been described by some leaders as "the man who can win for the Republicans." He has stated, however, that he had not considered becoming a candidate. A close friend of Gov. Arthur H. James, he would be assured of full committee support if he throws his hat in thhe ring.

Another top-flight Republican who has indicated his "willingness" to carry the party standard is Lieut.-Gov. Samuel S. Lewis, political aide of former Sen. Joseph F. Grundy.

Girl Scouts Aid National Defense

Urged To Buy Savings Stamps; To Become Familiar With Defense Requirements

Girl Scouts throughout the country are urged to buy defense savings stamps, participate in conservation and salvage drives and become thoroughly familiar with civilian defense requirements, in a message from Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse, Girl Scout national director, received today at the local girl scout headquarters, Greer building.

"There isn't much use in 'being ready to help' and 'wanting to do something' unless you know how and what to do," the message states in part. "Learn to do something really well; learn to plan together and become the kind of people who can be relied upon to take care of themselves and others if need comes."

Pointing out that there are many useful jobs which Girl Scouts can do to help this nation to victory and prepare for the right kind of peace, Mrs. Rittenhouse says, "Perhaps you think that I have forgotten that even in war times girls like fun and good times. Indeed I haven't, and I want you to enjoy being Girl Scouts. Work hard and play hard and practice over and over again a wide variety of Girl Scout skills so that you will know how to be useful, friendly, happy citizens."

According to the recommendations of the national Girl Scout organization on Girl Scout work for national defense, first aid, child care, nutrition, emergency cooking and campcraft, acting as messengers, guides and relaying messages, office and library work, reconditioning clothing, practice of home safety and organizing recreation are among the activities for the older, or Senior Girl Scouts. Simple first aid, knowledge of community with emphasis on facilities needed in emergencies, keeping physically fit, and learning to take care of younger children are defense services feasible for Girl Scouts of intermediate age. Even the Brownie Scouts, the little girls from seven to ten years old have their jobs—learning what to do and what not to do in case of injury, whom to call in case of fire, air raid alarms, sickness or accident, collecting paper, tinfoil and other defense materials, taking care of family pets and learning to entertain one's self are among the preparations listed.

"The Girl Scouts have pledged ourselves to sharing in civilian defense," the message stated. "The Girl Scout movement, with its more than 100,000 trained adult volunteers and over half a million girls, forms an important unit in the civilian forces."

Mexican Soldier Is Certain That Japs Haven't A Chance

By FRANK BRISTOL
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

ENSENADA, LOWER CALIF., Mex., Feb. 11.—There's no question about it in Juan Garcia's mind. The Japs haven't a chance. Even without the appreciated aid of "Tio Sam" he's certain that "mi General Cardenas y todos mis cuates" have the Lower California defense situation well under control.

Juan Garcia's army of "General Cardenas and all my pals" is as tough and courageous as it is colorful. Juan Garcia and his numerous counterparts, here in Ensenada and garrisoned all along the peninsula have plenty of the special fighting ability and technique required for the defense of this parched and forbidden terrain. Juan and his "cuates" do it the hard way—the only way possible here—but these soldiers of Cardenas know their jobs, and a morale problem simply doesn't exist.

Womenfolk Go Along

Juan Garcia is from Guanajuato in central Mexico. Right here in camp with him is his wife, Lupe, and their three barefoot youngsters. Mexico's army is, in truth, just one big family. Where Juan and his pals go, there go the womenfolk and their shoebutton-eyed progeny. Even in wartime the families are never far back of the front, doing the washing and getting out the frijoles and tortillas on schedule.

Juan Garcia gets the equivalent of 86 cents a day—Cardenas has ordered double pay here in Ensenada where the cost of living is high. Out of this sum he must buy the food and maintain his family.

Mexico's army wives are certainly among the world's most loyal and patient. Their steadfastness is recounted in the annals of every military campaign in Mexican history. Even among Pancho Villa's insurgents they were revered. Mexico's most popular army song, Adelita, was inspired by the esteem in which one of the Villista women was held. It goes: ". . . if Adelita were to leave with another, I'd follow her by land and by sea; if by sea in a ship of the navy; if by land, in a military train. . . ." But the "Adelitas" of that day seldom "left with another" and today's are no exception to the rule.

Likes Uncle Sam

Juan Garcia came part of the way here north of the border on the railroads of "Tio Sam". Asked what he thinks of the old Uncle these days, he says wtih quiet sincerity that "los norteamericanos" of "el presidente Rosafel" have shown their "buena voluntad" (good will) toward Mexico. Juan, like every other Mexican of humble origin, was angered at the attack on Pearl Harbor by "los cobardes japoneses".

Every soldier and sailor here is convinced that "mi General Cardenas" is just about the best in the world, and they echo the feelings of Mexico's vast proletaria. They are decidedly for Cardenas and they know Cardenas is for them. Even teetotaler Cardenas' restrictions against excessive drinking are accepted without complaint. (Off duty, soldiers may drink moderately, but anyone in uniform brought in drunk gets eight to 15 days in the guardhouse.) Ensenada's liquor store and cantina operators, who stocked up with tequila and mescal in anticipation of a roistering army's arrival, are probably numbered among the general's less-fervent admirers here.

During his ten years in the army Juan Garcia has never been stationed far from his hometown of Guanajuato. He had never seen a Jap before coming to Ensenada. Perhaps the long-range issues involved in this war are a little vague to Juan, who has only the rudiments of an education. But Juan Garcia's sense of honor and fair play is more than a rudimentary one. And his homespun idea of democracy will outlast a lot of the more abtruse conceptions.

One thousand miles of Lower California coast is a lot of territory to guard. But Juan Garcia and his pals are just the ones who can do it.

Different State Rules On Placing Auto Use Stamps

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—The federal government doesn't care where you put the new automobile use tax stamps, just as long as they're placed on the car, but in this tri-state section of Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey, have their own regulations—and they're all different.

In Pennsylvania motorists are advised to place the stamps facing out at the lower right hand side of the windshield, to the left of the state inspection stickers.

New Jersey has suggested the stamps be stuck on the back window, since its against the law to place anything on the front or side windows.

Delaware authorities told motorists to place the stamps, which cost $2.09 and are good until July 1, in the center of the windshield under the mirror.

Nazi General Was Killed When Motor On Plane Stalled

(International News Service)

BERNE, Feb. 11.—Motor failure caused the plane crash which killed Major General Fritz Todt, builder of the Siegfried Line, according to an official version of the accident reaching Berne today.

Todt was "returning from the east," this version said, when his multi-motored plane landed at an unspecified airdrome and then took off again. It rose to a height of 130 feet when one of the engines stopped from an undetermined cause.

Professor Albert Speer, a noted engineer and one of Adolf Hitler's close circle of friends, was named munitions minister as Todt's successor.

HEALTHY CHICKS LIVE

We are pleased to announce that this year all the breeders from which our chicks are produced have been blood tested for B.W.D. By the long tube test the blood is drawn from each bird by a licensed veterinarian and sent to a state laboratory for testing. This testing work is expensive; it is also very accurate and it will result in better livability in the chicks that you buy. Beware of so-called short or antingen tests performed at home by untrained operators with no official supervision of the work or the removal of reactors. For your own protection, demand that your chicks be hatched from a flock which has passed a test by the long tube method. Then you can be certain that your chicks will not inherit any Pullorum disease (B.W.D.)

THE COURT GOES COURTEOUS

After sitting in court room No. 1 Tuesday morning nobody would suggest that the judges of Lawrence county are not courteous. As a matter of fact they seemed to be operating on the theory that the customer is always right. One customer got a change of venue, or rather a change of judges, and another one wanted to go to jail. Both of them were accommodated although there's a question if the accommodation was just what they anticipated.

Walter Smith was before the court for failure to pay a $45 per month order to his wife and four children. Asked why, he said he had been called in the draft on January 3 and thought it wasn't fair to take him. Judge Braham replied that after all he wasn't living with his family and it looked as though Smith were trying to hide behind his wife's apron strings.

"I've been getting pushed around in this court," said Smith. "May I have another judge to hear my case?" Judge Braham readily agreed, asked Judge John G. Lamoree to take over and then left the bench.

Judge Lamoree looked the record over and suggested that Mr. Smith hadn't paid anything since January 3. Finally he said to Smith, "do you intend to pay this arrearage?"

"I do not," replied Smith.

"Commit him to jail," ordered Judge Lamoree, and Sheriff Clyde D. Badger ushered him out. As he was leaving the court room Smith looked back at Judge Lamoree and said "you'll be sorry for this."

"You stand committed," said Judge Lamoree, which means that Smith is in the clink until he makes some arrangements to comply with the court order.

Arthur Kimmel was in on a process for failure to pay the fine and costs of a case in which he was involved some months ago in Hickory township. Kimmel said he would pay the costs but he wouldn't pay the fine of $75. Judge Braham gave him 30 days in the county jail.

Ralph Largo, in on a process for failure to pay a fine and costs, got six months in the county jail.

CHICKEN THIEVES BUSY

County Detective Charles D. Ross is getting acquainted with the rural sections of the county due to the work of chicken thieves. A number of cases have been reported in the past ten days and Mr. Ross is riding the rural roads.

NEEDED SOME SCRAP

Charles Lyle of the Shenango Limestone company visited the office of Sheriff Clyde D Badger on Tuesday to report the theft of a four-ton crusher head from his plant. The head is of fine steel and would make a welcome addition to a steel plant. Apparently some collectors who wanted to help the defense program picked up the little gadget and hauled it away. The persons are said to be known which will probably mean a chance to explain their burst of patriotism or something.

Daily Dozen

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Farming is the most hazardous of all occupations.

In one year there are 4,500 fatal farm accidents.

Construction work kills 2,800, manufacturing 2,300

Why should farm work be frought with such danger?

Chiefly because a farmer often work alone.

A factory worker usually has a fellow worker to aid him.

A farmer, alone, caught in a tractor is helpless.

He may be attacked by a bull or kicked by a horse when alone.

The farmer often works after dark or with poor equipment.

Machinery causes 30 per cent of farm accidents.

Animals cause another 20 per cent, falls 9 per cent.

Every farmer must be his own 'safety inspector."

Record Fund For War Program Is Being Outlined

House Appropriations Committee Starts Hearings On Thirty-Two Billion Measure

By GRIFFING BANCROT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Top ranking war department officials were called as witnesses today as the House Appropriations Committee launched work on a $32,000,000,000 war bill—a measure dwarfing all others in history and designed to assure a vast superiority of equipment for the United States.

The single bill, which alone calls for spending almost as much as the entire cost of World I, will include:

For additional Lend-Lease aid mainly more foodstuffs and industrial products for this country's Allies, $5,430,000,000—which was asked by the President only yesterday.

For the Army, about half of which is ordnance, $22,888,000,000

For the Maritime Commission to step up its merchant shipbuilding program, $3,852,000,000.

Other Legislation

Meanwhile, on several other congressional fronts, legislators were hard at work on the following legislation:

1. Assured of quick passage in the Senate was the house-approved measure providing funds for the $500,000,000 war loan to China.

2. Hearing from ranking security and defense officials, the House Ways and Means Committee started work on a bill to provide $300,000,000 to those who have lost their jobs because of conversion of factories to war production.

3. Told at a White House conference that the war industry vitally needs additional power, Congressional leaders paved the way for early consideration of the $1,000,000,000 Rivers and Harbors Bill, under an agreement that immediate funds will be sought only for the major power projects such as the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway.

4. The bill to create a women's auxiliary army corps in this country was held up while the powerful House Rules Committee fought over proposed extension of the life of the Dies Committee, but members said the army-approved WAAC will get "earliest consideration."

5. Senators headed for a showdown fight over farm policies on a bill to prohibit the commodity credit corporation or any other federal agency from disposing of surplus farm stocks at less than parity prices.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS MAKE THEMSELVES RIGHT AT HOME IN IRELAND

—Central Press Phonephotos

It didn't take long for the soldiers of the American Expeditionary Force that landed in Northern Ireland to make themselves at home; in fact they did as soon as they landed. The doughboys at left lost no time in becoming acquainted with the two Irish lasses with whom they are pictured shortly after the troops disembarked. Less pleasant is the task of the American soldiers, right, who are cleaning their mess kits in a tub of hot water. One of the Nissen huts in which the soldiers live can be seen in the photo.

THOMAS ALVA EDISON

A MAN TO REMEMBER . . . in these days of peak production

American industry owes much to Thomas Edison. Domestic America too, is equally in his debt. No one in our history has done more to better the American standard of living than Edison. Our comfortable, well-lighted homes, our work-saving electric kitchens, our many electrical comforts, stem from Edison's inventive genius. He stands in the front ranks of our country's great men. His inventions to improve living standards are being used to defend and give strength to those ideas he cherished.

Deplore Apathy Of Americans On War Crisis

Stirring Addreses Are Made At Americanism Rally Last Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 11.—Deploring the complacency and apathy of the American people toward the critical world condition at the present time, stirring addresses were given last evening at the Lincoln high school auditorium by outstanding American Legion leaders.

The affair was an Americanism rally held by the American Legion Post and the small attendance was most disappointing but detracted not a bit from the outstanding and challenging addresses.

Mrs. Robert A. Russell, auxiliary western vice chairman, presented by Mrs. S. R. Berstler, was the first of the two main speakers. She pointed out that the freedom of America was born as the result of persecution and every generation has been called upon to sacrifice loved ones to keep that freedom. America will lose its identity if it becomes a part of the democratic council planned with one flag for all, she stressed.

America never would have been involved in this war if she had been prepared, Mrs. Russell stated and went on to point out that the Legion had advocated adequate national defense since the last war, and that its pleas had been met everywhere with jeers. The apathy of the American people will be their downfall, she declared, and urged that something be done to awaken the people from the 'We have everything" attitude. She concluded by pointing out the dangerous work being done by subversive groups in America.

"That which could not happen is here" was the idea about which the other main address by Daniel C. Hartbauer, state American Legion Americanism chairman, revolved. By their complacent attitude, Americans are living in aworld of false security. Two-thirds of the world is at war not of their own making, and they are all looking to America for help, and he urged that all groups, capital, labor, government, make every sacrifice so that the freedoms of America might stand.

Beaver County district attorney, Robert McCreary, also the Beaver County Legion committee Americanism chairman, presented Mr. Hartbauer. Americans are not deeply impressed by the world condition today, Mr. McCreary emphasized. They are not taking seriously the fall of Singapore, the almost helpless situation of MacArthur's troops, the imminent and to be expected fall of Australia and India, he declared. Only when people realize that America is not invincible will this country be saved. "Just because the people in Washington are sometimes wrong, we must not believe America is wrong," he declared, and made a final plea for a united nation.

Commander S. R. Berstler presided with the meeting opening with the singing of "America" led by Robert Taylor. Paul Winter directed the high school orchestra in a program of patriotic music before the speaking began.

Rev. H. F. Loch, Immanuel Reformed church, led the invocation. Charles Baird, Randolph Post Americanism chairman, introduced James Collins, of Saxonsburg, commander of the 26th District, who spoke briefly, and Burgess Clyde B. Houk, who asked the audience to support the local civilian defense program.

Mr. Baird also introduced Mrs. Oscar Bair, Legion Auxiliary president, who presented the Legion Auxiliary Americanism, Mrs. S. R. Berstler.

The American Legion is doing outstanding Americanism and patriotic work throughout the nation, and the local unit did a fine job in upholding their enviable record.

Boy Scout Leaders Honored At Dinner

Fine Tribute Paid To Men Who Give Time And Talents To Boys Work

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 11.—The men who really do the work of scouting, scoutmasters and assistants, were given a great tribute last evening when the annual boy scout dinner took place at the First U. P. church, and proved to be an overwhelming success as more than 275 attended.

Scouts, parents, council leaders, and friends assembled to pay tribute to the men who spend one night weekly at a scout troop meeting; who spend another evening with their troop officers planning events; who attend Boards of Review, Courts of Honor, and the other numerous scout activities connected with the successful operation of a troop. It was a sincere honor to these men who serve willingly and without pay or thought of acclaim.

High-lighting the evening was the annual presentation of the silver beaver, one of the highest ranks in scouting, to a member of the Council who has done outstanding work by the County Council. The silver beaver went to Erle B. Yahn, who has been active in scouting for fifteen years. Mr. Yahn is confined to his home by illness and was unable to attend.

Charles W. Carbeau, County president, made the presentation. Other holders of the award in Ellwood include Mr. Carbeau, J. A. Pearson and Nelson Runyan.

James J. McLaughlin presided as toastmaster. Merle Schilling expressed his appreciation as a scout and Chester Caldwell responded for the scoutmasters, using for his subject, "Why I Am A Scouter."

County executive, James J. Finnessy, called to the platform Bobby Williams and Edward Slevin, and paid high tribute to the latter who began the first aid work when Bobby was nearly strangulated from being caught in a window recently.

Among the guests introduced by the toastmaster were: Boyd Barrett, president of the local Scout Council; Elmer Greenham, Ellwood Council president; and Chief of Police, Ernest R. Hartman, an active scouter.

A large number of the newly formed Wampum troop attended with their leaders and were given a big welcome. The various troops took part in the color and flag ceremonies and the scout oath laws were presented in an impressive candle-lighting ceremony.

Group singing was led by Rev. A. M. Stevenson with Robert Jones as pianist.

Attractive red, white and blue table decorations featured the dinner with arrangements of flags taking the place of flowers. Members of the Hannah P. MacDonald class served a tempting braised steak dinner.

Banquet arrangements were in charge of A. Dambach; Kenneth Blank arranged the program, and Clyde Gibson was in charge of tickets.

Scout week activities will end on Friday, February 13, with a demonstration at the junior high school assembly hour by Charles Follette and the scout service corps.

Elden D. Danner has been general chairman of the week's activities and publicity has been arranged by H. Morrison Bradley.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—Democratic National Committeeman David L. Lawrence suffered a political defeat when the Democratic members of the legislative committee on congressional reapportionmen voted to approve the plan for redistricting the state . . . The defeat may turn out to be more of a moral nature than of material import, because a Lawrence supporter was later named to run at large for Congress . . . Lawrence's supporter on the committee, Assemblyman William L. Shaffer of Braddock, was the only one of the 10 members who refused to sign the agreement.

The mounting requests for increased relief grants may force Governor James to decide whether to approve them and possibly imperil his biennial budget or reject them . . . One of the chief problems is to find the added money that would be needed . . . It was for this reason, said Secretary of Public Assistance Howard L. Russell, that the state public assistance board failed to vote an increase in grants but instead decided to recommend to the governor that such action be taken.

Senator Davis recently stated he would be a candidate for governor if the "Republican voters nominate me as their candidate," which lead a veteran observer on Capitol Hill to ask the question, "How does a 'people's choice candidate' behave in a gubernatorial election year?" . . . The answer: (1) He says he is not a candidate seeking the office. (2) He writes letters to friends saying that his present job is not essential and that any man's place can, of course, be filled. (3) He says that if his party nominates him he will run. (4) He formally announces his candidacy 'at the request of many of my friends'" . . . Continued the observer: "Senator Davis who started his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor more than a year ago has covered three of these points so far. Many Republicans expect him to take up point four soon."

A story brulted about Capitol hill is that Joseph N. Pew, Jr., backer of the Republican organization in Pennsylvania, has suggested in the event Maj.-Gen. Edward Martin does not become a candidate for governor, Thomas S. Cates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, would be a good choice. . . . Republicans say he is not affilliated with any faction within the party and thus could be acceptable to all groups.

Both Attorney General Claude T. Reno and President Judge Howard W. Hughes of the Washington County common pleas court are being mentioned as possibilities for the G. O. P. nomination to succeed Supreme Court Chief Justice William I. Schaffer. . . . The aged jurist completes his 21-year term next January and under the law cannot succeed himself. . . . There will also be a vacancy on the superior court.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—A gubernatorial boom for former Gov. George H. Earle, recently returned U. S. minister to Bulgaria, may be launched at the testimonial dinner to be given him at the state capital by the young Democrats. The dinner is to be held on February 24. Earle says he is out of politics for the duration of the war and has expressed a desire to get back into the navy, in which he served with distinction during the last war. There isc strong sentiment, nevertheless, for the former governor among party elements who would like to see him stage a vindication campaign. Many feel also that if the former governor threw his hat into the campaign it might head off a dangerous primary conflict.

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders are preparing to meet at Harrisburg on February 14 in response to a call by State Chairman Meredith Meyers to consider candidates for governor and other state offices. Senator Joseph F. Guffey has promised to reveal at that time whom he will back for governor. Some say it will be Allegheny county's jurist, Ralph H. Smith, who ran for lieutenant-governor in 1938 on a Guffey-backed ticket that lost out in the Democratic primary. Others say it will be Luther A. Harr, former secretary of banking, who managed Guffeys' campaign for re-election in 1939.

With the expectation general that Sen. James J. Davis will announce his candidacy soon for the Republican nomination for governor, friends of James H. Duff, of Allegheny county, are attempting to work up support for him in western Pennsylvania in opposition to Davis. Former Congressman James M. Magee is said to be leading a "draft Duff" campaign. Duff has already stated he will become a candidate in the event Davis decides to run.

In order to expedite the work of the special session, Democratic leaders in the House have agreed to send all bills introduced in the lower chamber to a special committee, rather than to the numerous standing committees. Speaker Elmer Kilroy and Majority Leader Leo Achterman decided this plan would be more effective than the usual method of handling bills. The work of the special session will necessarily be limited to the subjects Governor James includes in his legislative call. The session will probably convene on February 17, perhaps a day earlier, and certainly not later than February 23.

The new congressional reapportionment plan drawn up by a bipartisan legislative committee will probably be approved by the legislature without too much trouble, but it won't be all sunshine and honey. Several legislators in western Pennsylvania don't like the arrangement, but can't do much about it. However, they are expected to express their opposition orally, and with feeling.

FARM LABOR IS HARD TO SECURE

Secretary Of Agriculture In State Says Shortage Is Serious Now

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10.—Recent state surveys show that more than 50 per cent of Pennsylvania's farmers are experiencing serious difficulties in obtainnig farm labor, Secretary of Agriculture John H. Light announced.

The average farmer will have to adjust his operations to machinery and such labor as is available, Light declared, adding "farmers will have to work longer hours and, equipped as tractors now are with lights, they may even work at night-time."

A second problem, pointed out Light, is the replacement of worn-out mechanicms of various necessary farm implements. As repair parts may not be available, the Pennsylvania farmer may, in the future, have to resort to the practice found successful in California—that of establishing small shops on the farms in which the farmer can make his own castings and carry out needed repairs.

Although farmers are not changing their plans greatly to meet defense needs, many are facing the situation by improving their present stock and by doing without new machinery. Since the outbreak of war, the price of stock and implements has been steadily climbing and is now considerably higher than it was a year ago.

The canning industry in the state, which must depend almost entirely on casual labor, is facing a serious shortage of workers. Since the last canning season, most of the available labor for this type of work has either gone into private industry or has entered the nation's armed forces.

Light said:

"The matter that will give us the most serious trouble and consideration will be the effect of the present consideration in congress to establish a ceiling on farm prices. With a ceiling on farm prices and no ceiling on labor, it may create an impossible situation for both the grower and the canner.

"The farmers and food producers never could compete with industry so far as wages are concerned, and it is hoped that congress will make due consideration in their deliberation on the subject of ceilings for farm prices."

FIRE-SWEPT, WATER-LOGGED, NORMANDIE LIES ON SIDE IN RIVER

—Central Press Phonephoto

Made top-heavy by the hundreds of tons of water poured into her upper decks by firemen battling the flames that swept her superstructure, the former French luxury liner Normandie is pictured above after she had keeled over onto her port side at her Hudson river pier in New York. Renamed the U. S. S. Lafayette, the liner was being refitted as a United States navy auxiliary when the fire broke out. Navy officials hope that the ship can be righted and repaired for service.

Breaking State Records For Milk-Egg Production

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—To meet the demands for an increased amount of farm products made necessary by the nation's defense program, Pennsylvania's poultry and cattle are consistently breaking previous records of egg and milk production.

Surveys of the federal-state crop reporting service indicate that December was the ninth consecutive month during which a new high record of egg laying was marked up by the commonwealth's poultry. With an average rate of production of 35.9 eggs per flock of 100, the state's layers produced a total of 161,000,000 eggs in December as compared with 149,000,000 in the same month a year previously. The 15,930,000 layers in the state during December also showed an increase, or 558,000 more than the preceding year.

Price Of Eggs Up

With farmers forced to pay more for their feed the price per dozen of eggs has increased, the average price received during December being 36.9 cents as compared with 28.9 in that month a year earlier. Despite this increase in cost of feed the return from eggs to the farmer was more favorable, for it required 77 eggs during last December to purchase 100 pounds of feed compared with 82 eggs in that month a year previously.

Federal-state crop reports show that milk production in the state during December likewise established a new high record, production averaging 16.8 pounds of milk per cow in the reported herds.

Costs of cattle feed increased between two and three per cent., but in spite of the increase, dairymen reporting on January 1 averaged 7.4 pounds of grain and concentrates fed per cow in the herd, this figure being one of the highest ever recorded.

More Milk Produced

Along with the increased amount of milk being produced in the state, farmers are raising their output of creamery butter, the amount in November totaling 1,030,000 pounds, or 12 per cent. above that produced a year earlier.

The number of cattle on feed at the beginning of 1942 was smaller than a year ago. During the first 11 months of 1941 shipment of feeder cattle into the state through public stockyards was 24 per cent. less than the same period in 1940, while direct movement was also less. This sharp decline is attributed to the shortage of labor, dry season and scant water supply in many localities, and the higher price of profitable feeders.

Warning that strict compliance with the potato marketing law is required in every instance has been issued by John H. Light, secretary of agriculture, who points out that because of the increasing demand for potatoes, many growers are improperly labeling the actual grades contained in closed packages. To safeguard against such violations of the law department inspectors are checking potato grades and labels in all markets and production centers of the commonwealth.

"The great majority of growers and dealers observe the law to the letter," Light stated, "but occasionally violations occur which defeat the purpose of the law which is for the protection of the industry and the consuming public."

Cautions Men To Give Legal Address When Registering

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11—Men over 20 and under 45 who register for Selective Service on February 16 were cautioned today by Col. B. F. Evans, acting state draft director, to give their legal, permanent, home address when doing so. This address determines the local board which will have jurisdiction over the registrant. He may receive board communications, however, at a temporary address, if that is more convenient for him, Evans explained.

War Labor Board Is Facing Test

Problems Before New Body May Present Crucial Test For Board

By JACK VINCENT
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Facing tests that will make it or break it, the full War Labor board was called together to decide whether workers in war industries will be paid time and one-half and double time for Saturday and Sundays.

In addition to the overtime question, which cropped up in a General Motors-CIO dispute, the board had before it disputes which may see precedents for general wage increases in basic mass production industries.

Meanwhile, members of the board are drafting their first decision. It involves demands of the CIO's aluminum workers' union for scrapping of the north-south wage differential in two plants of the Aluminum Company of America at Badin, N. C., and Alcoa, Tenn. If it recommends elimination of the differential, southern employers are expected by informed labor observers to start attacking the WLB.

The decision will be completed by Friday or Saturday, it was predicted.

Hearings in the overtime dispute between General Motors and the CIO's united automobile workers' union started Tuesday. Only the overtime issue is involved, although the union and company are now negotiating a new contract. The UAW is asking a $1-a-day wage increase and the union shop. If deadlocked, the $1-a-day wage increase and union shop questions also may be referred to the board.

These issues already are before the board in two instances. One involves 90,000 workers of Bethlehem Steel, the other 50,000 workers of Republic Steel. The CIO's steel workers organizing committee, headed by Phil Murray, who is also CIO president, is demanding wage increases throughout the steel industry. The decision of the board in the Bethlehem and Republic cases will set the precedent, and, if favorable to labor, probably set into motion a trend leading to general wage increases in all basic industries at a time when they are being converted to war work.

The WLB, to date, has settled eight cases by arbitration and it still has to make its first formal decision. That will come late this week in the Alcoa case. The board has a total of 58 cases before it, many involving the union shop and the checkoff. It is still headed by William H. Davis, chairman of the old national defense mediation board, and it has kept most of the personnel of the now-defunct NDMB.

"Mystery Colony" Raided In West

F. B. I. Men Swoop Down On Haunts Of Enemy Aliens On West Coast

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11—Fifty Federal Bureau of Investigation agents headed by Nat Pieper and an estimated 75 additional police officers and army and navy aides swooped down ina dozen simultaneous raids on known haunts of enemy aliens in the Monterey, Salinas, Watsonville, Pacific Grave and Carmel sections Tuesday.

The raids were revealed in an announcement by the San Francisco F. B. I. field office for Northern and Central California.

The raids were carried out after the F. B. I. received numerous reports of enemy alien activity in the Monterey Bay area, particularly at a ranch near Salinas.

The ranch was characterized as a "Mystery Colony" and is suspected of being the nerve center of enemy alien activity in that area.

Enemy aliens in the Monterey area were being taken into custody for questioning and searches were being conducted for contraband, including guns, cameras, radios and any other materials which enemy aliens may not legally have in their possession.

Verses For V. B. C. By Poetry Group

Local Poets Turn Talents To Verse To Boost Victory Book Campaign

At a recent meeting of the poetry group at the Public Library, members of that organization produced original verses composed on behalf of the victory book campaign now under way to get donations of new and interesting books as reading material for service men.

Here are a few of the compositions:

We can help to cheer our rookies,
With a batch of home-made cookies,
And the bonds we buy, and taxes,
Will help knockout the "Axis";
But Uncle Sammy's doughboys
Have brains as well as looks,
And Uncle Sammy's doughboys
Would like 10,000,000 books.
—Nita Johnson Brenner.

Here we come, 10,000,000 strong,
To while away the hours so long;
Fiction, or not, all books go
To do their bit with the U.S.O.
—Frances M. Haydon

We are sending you books,
Your time to beguile
With stories we deem
Quite good and worthwhile;
To read on your time—
Not Uncle Sam's—
When resting in billets,
Not taking commands.
Good books are like friends
We remember, anon,
For their beauty and goodness
Long after they're gone.
So read them for culture,
For humor—don't weep;
Keep reading these books,
They may put you to sleep.
—Josephine B. Alexander.

Elephants Show Their Displeasure

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, Feb. 11—The elephant herd of the Grotto Circus put on a real show before an unappreciative audience of keepers in Public Hall Tuesday and wrecked their quarters before being quieted.

It all started when one of the keepers took two of the elephants to Brookside Zoo to return a mate, Trixie, to the circus. Trixie was loaned to the zoo two years ago by the circus and she was to resume her place in the elephant act this afternoon.

The other elephants, apparently resenting the fact that two of their mates were to get a morning constitutional, set up an ear-splitting trumpeting and finally broke down their fences and ran wild in the basement of the hall.

Keepers scattered for cover as the bulky brutes picked up two-by-four planks with their trunks and hurled them in the general direction of their frightened guardians.

The impromptu exhibition was still raging when the head keeper arrived and succeeded in calming the rampaging animals before anyone was injured.

Circus officials explained that the elephants were taken from their quarters to the zoo as an escort for Trixie because two or three animals are easier for a keeper to handle than one.

LOSSES OF FARMERS

Losses incurred in the operation of farms as business enterprises are deductible from gross income. If farm products are held for favorable markets, no deduction on account of shrinkage in weight or physical value, or by reason of deterioration in storage, is allowed, except as such shrinkage may be reflected in an inventory if used in determining profits.

The destruction by frost, storm, flood, or fire of a prospective crop is not a deductible loss in computing income since it represents the loss of anticipated profits which have never been reported as income. Likewise, a farmer engaged in raising and selling livestock, such as cattle, sheep, and hogs, is not entitled to claim as a loss the value of animals that perish from among those animals that were raised on the farm, except as such loss is reflected in an inventory, if used. If livestock has been purchased for any purpose, and afterward dies from disease, exposure, or injury, or is killed by order of the authorities of a state or the United States, the actual purchase price of such livestock, less any depreciation allowable as a deduction in respect of such perished livestock, may be deducted as a loss if the loss is not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. The actual cost of other property (with proper adjustments for depreciation) which is destroyed by order of State or Federal authorities may likewise be claimed as a loss. If reimbursement is made by a State or the United States in whole or in part on account of stock killed or other property destroyed in respect of which a loss was claimed in a prior year, the amount received is required to be reported as income for the year in which reimbursement is made. The cost of any feed, pasture, or care which has been deducted as an expense of operation must not be included as part of the cost of stock for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of a deductible loss.

If gross income is ascertained by the use of inventories, no deduction can be taken separately for livestock or products lost during the year, whether purchased for resale or produced on the farm, as such losses will be reflected in the inventory by reducing the amount of livestock or products on hand at the close of the year, which has the effect of reducing gross income from business by the amount of the loss.

If an individual owns and operates a farm in addition to being engaged in another trade or business or calling, and sustains a loss from the farming operations, such loss may be deducted from gross income received from all sources in determining the taxpayer's net income, provided such farm is not operated for recreation or pleasure.

If a farm is operated for recreation or pleasure and not on a commercial basis, and if the expenses incurred in connection therewith are in excess of the receipts therefrom, the entire receipts from the sale of products may be ignored in rendering a return of income, and the expense incurred, being regarded as personal expenses, will not constitute allowable deductions for Federal income-tax purposes.

THE SALVATION ARMY

Departing from the war news for the next three weeks, there will be articles in regard to the Salvation Army work among the prisons, penitentiaries and jails. Any questions concerning any of these articles will receive a prompt reply if sent to Captain Carl Andreasen, box 447, New Castle, Pa.

The Salvation Army functions in prisons, penitentiaries, reformatories, in penal institutions of all types and in every locality. For some years the Army has also been active in the movement for prison reform and instrumental in creating a new attitude towards the criminal. Whereas formerly the criminal was regarded as an object of scorn subjected to hardships and tortoure, today he is looked upon as a human being. The Salvation Army starts with the premise that even a criminal of the worst degraded type is capable of rehabilitation, given proper approach and understanding.

The Army, in accepting and endorsing the progress being made in penology, has cooperated fully with various institutions active in this kind of work. It works closely with prison authorities with proper regard for policy interpretation and correctness of procedure.

Especially in the field of parole has the Salvation Army done a commendable piece of work in its effort to return the offender to society as a useful, law-abiding citizen. But more important still is the youth program formulated by the Army for the purpose of preserving and fostering good citizenship.

The local corps receives many letters from prisoners asking for assistance of one kind or another and, so far as is possible, their requests are honored. The Army acts as a sort of go-between for the prisoner who honestly works to mend his ways and society which can always find place for an industrious, conscientious citizen.

KEEPING FIT—High school girls in Chicago toe the mark for a race as part of the program of "keeping fit."

Titans Top Scorers; In Pennsy Race, Too

Westminster's speedy Titans, by peppering the hoops for 141 points in their last two games, top all other Pennsylvania collegiate teams in scoring, besides being in the runnning for the mythical state title.

The Lawrence countians today boast of 797 points, 69 more than Villanova, their nearest foe. Villanova, by the way, has played two games more than Westminster.

In the race for the crown which Westminster won last year, Penn State holds a slim lead among the state's bigwigs with 10 wins against a pair of setbacks. Westminster, with 12 victories against a trio of losses, trails the Nittany Lions. Duquesne dropped back as a result of its loss to Long Island.

By emerging victorious in its remaining six clashes, the Titans would have an exceptionally sound argument for claiming the title.

Westminster's remaining games are with Brooklyn, Villanova, Pitt U., Bethany, Duquesne and Carnegie Tech.

Duquesne must still face Villanova (tonight), Georgetown, Waynesburg, DePaul, Geneva, Westminster and West Virginia.

Penn State's card calls for battles with Temple (tonight) Colgate, Syracuse, Pitt, West Virginia, New York University and Carnegie Tech.

Second-Saints Battle Tonight

Battle For First Place In New Castle Church League Tonight

First place in the New Castle Church league will be at stake tonight when the league-leading Second U. P. team battles the St. Vitus team, the runners-up. This will be the first game on the bill and will start at 7:45 o'clock.

Both teams are highly confident as the time of the game nears. Indications point to a banner crowd at the "Y" tonight to see this important contest that the fans have been talking about for quite a while. The Second U. P. team trimmed the St. Vitus boys, 36 to 30, the last time out and are favored to repeat tonight.

St. Vitus has a wonderful record in two years of play—winning 45 and losing but five. The Saints will lose two of their star players to Uncle Sam shortly—Louie Santangelo will be inducted on February 14 and Nickie Gennock will leave on February 17. Gennock has played with several championship teams: Sacred Hearts, Keystone A. C., Gersons and St. Vitus. His services will be greatly missed.

Tthe other two games on the card tonight are Croton vs. Central Presbyterians and Epworth vs. Third U. P. in another East Side championship affair.

Cement City Dribblers Trounce New Wilmington, 28-18, On Tuesday Night

Bessemer high's alert basketball team soared to the top of the Section 20 race by trouncing New Wilmington high, 28-18, Tuesday night in Bessemer.

Headed by Grubisa and Tasota, the victors unfurled an attack that was as smooth as silk. The host team moved ahead in the opening minute and was never in danger thereafter. As the opening chapter closed, Bessemer held an 11-2 margin which was upped 19-9 as the boys left the court for intermission.

Grubisa, a performer who does everything with eclat, was top man with a dozen points, followed by Tasota with 10. Evans led the visiting contingent with a half dozen points.

In the prelim, the "Greyhound" seconds, sporting a 15-game streak, were on the losing end, 23-22. The Bessemer "jayvees" settled the issue in the final seconds when Anderson popped in a deuce from the foul circle.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Knights of Tin Ear row are a-feudin' and this is news because years have elapsed since interest other than ordinary has been shown by followers of those who "pitch and receive". At this end of the pugilistic lane we can see boys on the prowl and hear assertions thrown hither and yon. In fact, the assertions are more pert and tactful. Having been affiliated with pugilists, good and bad, for more than three decades, we can loll back in our restful chair and foresee all parties concerned, sooner or later, calling the stygian battle off.

Johnny Jones, the ball player, is assistant to the city electrician... Stanley Jones still machanics cars. ...Have not seen Paul McCullough recently along the Main Stem.... Fiz Rodenbaugh is now a machinist and equally as good as he was an infielder or pitcher...Jim Martin is beginning to move about and will soon yearn for the "play ball' siren in Bessemer.

Frankie Moran will not turn pro-fessional until he has discussed it with this engineer, he stated a few days ago, despite reports. When he leaves town we want to see him with a man who knows boxing and will watch him according to ability. ...But we don't expect him to leave. ...He supports a family...Matching fighters is an art. Anybody can get a fighter knocked crazy for somuch per bout.

Just to keep the records right let us say Billy Reale lost to Lloyd Williams in Rochester Monday night. Lester Leasure beat Don Riffe, Nick Retorto decisioned Prentice Hail and one of tonight's combatants, Arbie Bowie, lost to Walter Kalby... Red Friesell has resigned from officiating in athletic affairs. He sustained a broken leg refereeing professional football last fall.

Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott, who will be the honor guest at a testimonial dinner in Washington, Pa., fought here as an amateur when George Tucker was coach of the W. & J. ring team. However, Angott is a non-collegian. ...We believe that Billy Conn will outpoint Tony Zale. He is sharpening his eyes in tune-up bouts for Friday night...Zale's manager, Sam Elan, often visited here when Ernie Peters boxed in Jolly bowl.

For a washed-up middleweight, Fritzie Zivic did not do so bad (he won) against Paul Carabantes. Some say is was a "dirty" fight. We yet remember the Cuddy De Marco-Jack Bernstein fight when the junior lightweights fought dog-like rules. In fact, the referee did not bother to warn either man about fouling. He wasn't getting hurt. The public wanted a fight and they got one with gouging, heeling, elbows on the chin plus butting.

Eddie Connery deosn't see city or county baseball slipping into oblivion for the duration. "Certainly there'll be baseball," said the suave Edward yesterday. It will not be long until the baseball boys begin peeking into closets for their baseball shoes and dreaming of sunshine. Alec Samuels of the Lawrence county loop has promised to page the managers. Selective Service and enlistments will not take all of the ball players.

One cannot but like Staff Sergeant Johnny Dean. If ever a boy is doing the right thing he is. Dean is a Marine recruiter here. He is the type reared in the Margaret Henry home. He wasn't raised with a gold spoon in his mouth. One of the reasons Johnny is making good is because he has the greatest manager in the world, Uncle Sam.

Joe Medwick of Brooklyn is hot around the collar anent Bill Terry because of the Brooklyn "Bums" talk. Medwick asserted in Sarasota, Fla., today that "Terry hasn't done so hot lately" and added that "we won't be beat out by the Giants".

From Palm Beach today comes word that Mrs. T. E Nolan of this city, who has qualified with a creditable 81, was beaten 3 and 2 Tuesday by Catherine Fox of Glen Ridge, N. J., in the Palm Beach women's golf tourney. Georgia Taine, Fargo, N. D., and Sally Sessions of Muskegon, Mich., won and went into the second round.

Meissen, Peruvian giant, made his North American debut at Hialeah yesterday and lumbered home a distanced next to last in the Pompano purse which was taken by King's Ranch Dispose. Dispose breezed in five lengths ahead in 1:10 1-5. Signator was second and Doubirab third. Olympus hung up a new track record of 1:56 3-5 in the fifth race. This was one-fifth of a second faster than Buttermilk's old mark.

GOOD PITCH, GOOD HIT

Three of the American Association's five leading pinch hitters in 1941 were pitchers—Dickson, Marcum and Judd.

The first automobile race in America was held on Nov. 28, 1895, at Chicago, Ill.

Tasty Menu Of Boxing On Tap Here Tonight

Indications Point To Overflow Crowd Seeing "I. P." Fights

CHAMPS, LOCAL BOYS ON DOCKET

Tonight is Punch Night in The Arena and that portion of humanity's mob which appreciates dancing feet, ambidexterous hands, a gymnastic brain and physical courage have the opportunity to see all these essentials when 16 amateur boxers gambol in eight bouts, the first of which will begin at 8:30 p. m., to benefit the Infantile Paralysis Fund.

To say that the pugilistic docket arranged is of an illuminative kind is putting it mildly. In fact, it smacks of All-Star hue because on the calendar are included champs, runners-up and some caustic as well as haughty performers.

For instance, there's the Lester Leasure vs Norman Fitch, 160 pound joust. Lester hopes some day to cut a wide swath in ringdom's realm, likewise Norman who hails from Chester, W. Va.

Lester has a potent right; one that when it lands, acts the same as when a tank crashes against a young sapling. Norman is rugged, biffs equally as well as Lester, hence a thrill fight is in the offing.

The Big Noise tonight, according to fans, will come when Nick Wargo, Dia-Belt junior lightweight champion of Pittsburgh takes on the ever-ready caustic Frankie Cordy of Niles who won on the first fight recently.

Nick has worn the pugilistic diadem so long he is somewhat haughty toward his ring compatriots. However, he has burned beneath his hair because he lost to the Buckeye battler and believes 'revenge is sweet'.

Not being a condoler, Cordy didn't go to Nick's dressing-room following the first fight to say: "Good fight, Nick" and later explained what condolences he possesses are in his gloves.

And now that rhythmic dancing is very much in the fore of newspapers it might not be amiss to cite that Chuck Jackson, Dia Belt 112-pound champ will cavort against Dick Roach of Niles.

Graceful and Fast

They're almost as graceful as any terpsichorean star and being pint-sized possess the speed that gets one around a ring. But don't assimilate any notion they are going to do a "Waltz me Around again, Dearie."

Not having ogled either Howard James, Aliquippa's 175 pound champion nor George Magsum, Chester, W. Va., the writer cannot say other than he expects a brawl. They're big enough.

Howard didn't receive his ring honor by stinting effort and last week in McKeesport, Magsum came through with a knockout, this proving he possesses an anesthetic in the shape of a glove.

Tony De Prim of Youngstown will face Red Bardo, Pittsburgh middleweight. Thomas Leach claims he is a "hard guy" and hopes to ambush Bardo.

Shelton On Card

Billy Shelton, of Pittsburgh, a minature Joe Louis, excepting that he doesn't score as many knockouts, will prance with Melio Donelli of Youngstown, at 135.

Melio is no man's sap and Shelton's work is cut out for him. If he wins over Melio he can forget all about that other fracas and make arrangements to appear here often.

Baby Face Leasure who perked up right smart after his downfall before Frankie Cordy, will oppose Arbie Bowie, 135, an elongated, cagey youngster from Aliquippa. The latter has a long reach. He dotes on jab.

Brother Al, (Leasure, of course) will be the third member of the family, on the card. He is a novice, likewise Wayne Dillon of Chester, who scored a knockout at McKeesport last week. They weigh 135.

All in all tonight's Menu of Punch appears rather tasty and may prove an appetizer to coax boxing enthusiasts from the fireside and radio. The monetary returns will help combat Infantile Paralysis.

The Jefferson A. C. will promote the show with Tommy Leach, Ed. Fritz, Ray Wallace, Presley Jones and Attorney Walter Kieler in charge. The production has been authorized by the P. A. C. and A. A. U.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

What's new in the sports whirl today? . . . .

An unfortunate automobile accident has cost New Castle high one of the greatest track prospects since the days of Ralph Day, Len Friedman, Johnny Eardley, "Baldy" McGrath, Andy Lasky, only to mention a few. The athlete who was as sure to blaze across the sports horizon as tomorrow is Thursday, is Johnny Mitchell, 17-year-old youth of 803½ West State street . . . .

As you read this, the colored athlete is convalescing in Jameson Memorial hospital from two broken legs sustained in Farrell a few weeks back. Mitchell was standing on a curb, along with several youths, when a car was accidentally driven over the curb, hitting three or four of the boys, one of them the New Castlelite . . . .

William "Bill" Klee, the local track impressario who told me about the unhappy incident, ranked the miler and 220 runner with "the best track prospect we have had in years." The boy, a sophomore who became 17 on February 1, gave an inkling of his potentialities last season, finishing second in the W. P. I. A. L. mile event. With Mitchell in the lineup, New Castle had about 90% of the coming tourney meet in the bag . . . .

Bernard Hanlon, whose name has been synonymous with basketball here for the past 15 years, is about to divorce the sport. "Bud," as he is called because of a warm personality that is packed with magnetism, has filed an application to join the United States Navy. If you're a cage fan, you probably know "Bud". For the benefit of those who follow ping-pong or jai alai better than basketball, Hanlon ranks as one of the most competent as well as one of the most popular referees in the district . . . .

Nothing new to report on the Mt. Jackson high ineligibility case . . . . Fred Shaffer, who flings for Louisville of the A. A., reportedly is awaiting his call from the gent who wears the red, white and blue derby . . . Paul Minner, who chucked with Knoxville in the Southern association last year, received his 1942 contract. He did not autograph the document. Not enuf $$$ . . . .

The last of the National Football league 1941 statistics have hit the desk. Spring can't be too far away . . . . The Pittsburgh Pirates will open their home season on April 17, facing the St. Louis Cardinals. Unlike Cincinnati which sold out its opening day attraction months ago, plenty of ducats are available . . . .

Want to help kayo infantile paralysis? Patronize tonight's I. F. fund boxing soires in The Arena. An exceptionally meritorious event . . . .

MAY SHIFT SCENE

If war threatens the east coast the Havre de Grace meeting this spring will be shifted to Bel Air, Md., a half mile track.

Titans Nab 12th With Ease, 63-46

Dale Dunmire, Lee Fox, "Buzz" Ridl Lead Assault Against Millersville

(Special To The News)

MILLERSVILLE, Pa, Feb. 11.—Westminster college's "dead eye Dicks" electrified a big gallery here on Tuesday night when they romped over a supposedly strong Millersvilel State Teachers aggregation, 63-46.

In recording their 12th victory of the season, the Lawrence countians won as they pleased. With the echo of the starting whistle still in the air, the Titans had already flipped a couple of fielders.

Despite the fact that Coach Washabaugh inserted his bench warmers freely and at an early stage of the setto, the Titans continued their almost incredible offensive attack that arrests the eyes.

By the time the opponents left for the halftime wash, Westminster had the clash in the bag. From the third on, the Titans coasted. "Buzz" Ridl spearheaded the attack with 15 points. Dale Dunmire came in second with 14 points.

Following the clash, the Titans boarded a train and headed toward New Wilmington to start preparing for their "make or break" games of the season, Monday night against Brooklyn in Madison Square Garden and Wednesday against Villanova in Philadelphia.

BEAUTIES, BUT THEY KNOW HOW TO SWIM, TOO!

These girls are not like most of the bathing beauties. They really can swim. All members of the Chicago Shawnee Country club, the girls, left to right, Ruth Lasser, Lorraine Schillig, Alice Miller and Carol Hamann, participate in the Central A. A. U. swim championship meet at Evanston, Ill.

FAIR OR FOUL

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—In just about three weeks it will be impossible for you to get off a train in Florida without stepping on a ball player.

The woods, the hamlets and the cities of the southern playground will be over-run by the gentts who make our big sports headlines in the good old summer-time and by those many others who are nearly forgotten or unheard of up to now. As always, the glass-armed, spavined veterans will be basking in the hot sun trying to get into shape to squeeze one more year out of their wrinkled carcasses and the rookies will find themselves standing finally right at the portals to the promised land.

The veterans and the rookies can never be sure whether they are making it or at which minute they will be heading out of the camp and toward the bushes, some certain of another chance, others sure this is their last call. The war will cut it short for many of them. If they don't make it now they probably won't get another chance soon.

The war may drastically affect future training plans, too, but for this year the spring muscle business is booming as ever, with eight major league clubs and more than a dozen minors in Florida and with four major league clubs in California.

Old Old Custom

Advance squads will begin to arrive at their training headquarters in a week, and the rest will follow a week or so later and by the first week in March the program, including some of the earlier exhibition games will be on, with the pennant races around the corner.

As for the pennant races, it seems likely that whatever honors may go with having a pennant-winner train in your town will be corralled in at least one league this time by St. Petersburg, Fla., and this city stands a pretty good chance of turning out both pennant-winners and, therefore, the world champions.

In keeping with custom dating back so many years that the present generation doesn't even know when it started, the New York Yankees will be at St. Petersburg again along with the St. Louis Cardinals. The Yanks should repeat, according to the early returns, and many are picking the Cards to overthrow the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League.

The rest of the major leaguers will do their spring drilling at these points:

American League

Cleveland at Clearwater, Fla.; Boston at Sarasota, Fla.; Detroit at Lakeland, Fla.; Washington at Orlando, Fla.; St. Louis at Deland, Fla.; Chicago at Pasadena, Cal.; and Philadelphia at Anaheim, Cal.

National League

Brooklyn at Havana, Cuba, and Daytona Beach, Fla.; Cincinnati at Tampa, Fla.; Boston at Sanford, Fla.; Philadelphia at Miami Beach, Fla.; New York at Miami, Fla.; Chicago at Santa Catalina Island, Cal.; Pittsburgh at El Centro and San Bernardino, Cal.

The only switches in training sites since last season are Boston Braves from San Antonio, Tex., to Sanford, the St. Louis Browns from Texas to Deland and the Cleveland Indians from Fort Myers, Fla., to Clearwater.

The answer to all of which is, "play ball!"

Gersons Winner Over N. Y. A. Five

Spurting in the last period, the Gersons handed the crack N.Y.A. flippers their second loss of the season, 38-29, in The Arena.

The N.Y.A. sported a 23-21 margin as the fourth period began. The Fitzer brothers, who divided 18 points, starred for the Gersons. Y. Antonio, with 17 points, was outstanding for the losers.

Propose College Entrance Requirement Changes

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Sweeping changes in college entrance requirements were recommended today by the commission on the relation of school and college on the basis of an eight-year study which showed that graduates of progressive schools were more successful in college than those from traditional schools.

The commission tested the college success of 1,475 students from 30 progressive schools matched with an equal number of graduates from traditional schools, and found that the former demonstrated more leadership, thought more clearly, had a better understanding of democracy, took a keener interest in the arts and got slightly better grades than those from traditional schools.

More than 300 colleges cooperated in the nation-wide study, directed by 400 experts at a cost of more than $500,000 advanced by the Rockefeller general education board and the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

The commission proposed that college entrance be based upon a candidate's high school record, extra-curricular work and character as well as a scholastic aptitude test and other new tests designed to measure a candidate's abilities instead of specific knowledge.

The careers of the progressive and traditional groups were watched closely to ascertain how they got along with other people, performed their duties as citizens, and solved the problems of modern living.

Among other superior accomplishments, the progressive school students were found to have more "intellectual drive," clearer ideas about the purpose of their education, greater resourcefulness in meeting practical problems, and showed a kener interest in world affairs.

The two groups were similar when it came to personal problems and popularity.

The commission concluded that "the knowledge, skills, habits and qualities of mind and character essential as preparation for college work should be ascertained by colleges and schools cooperatively," and proposed a plan of admission to college with needed information concerning candidates, but which does not prescribe the content or organization of the second school curriculum.

"The failure of schools and colleges to coordinate their work has resulted in enormous waste of time, effort and money," the report asserted. "The tragic consequences to thousands of boys and girls are beyond all measurement."

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

This is sure a big day at our house . . . the little g. is two years old. Although she has an idea of what a birthday is, having celebrated several with other members of the family in the past month, she just can't seem to make it all out. A cake with candles burning is about all she can talk about . . . and of course she asks for ice cream as a dessert for her birthday dinner. Personally, it looks from where I sit, here mother and father are getting a bigger thrill out of the day . . . but it won't be long until a birthday will be something to look forward too . . . and then like all girls' birthdays, it will be something to look back on.

Wouldn't you like to have a little kitten . . . there are two at 510 West Washington street that would make fine little pets . . . they are about four months old and just at the right age to keep you interested.

All you good citizens please take notice . . . On February 20, 21 and 22 the Girl Reserves will be in convention here in New Castle . . . . about 150 visiting girls from the state will be in town during these three days . . . Now there is a question concerning the housing of these visitors . . . if you have room for one or more girls here is how long they will be in your home. They will arrive Friday evening, February 20, you will be asked to meet them at the Y. W. at nine o'clock. You will be requested to serve them breakfast Saturday morning and Sunday morning . . . outside of that, the time will be planned by the local Girl Reserves. . .NOW, if you have room to sleep one or more girls won't you please call this number . . . 3035-W . . . Your cooperation in this manner will be greatly appreciated . . . not only by the local citizens but by the mothers and fathers of girls from other sections.

Maybe we are wrong . . . but it seems only proper that Main streets be ashed first when icy weather sets in. East Washington street. State street hill should have ashes before any other section of town . . . These large trucks tie up traffic and cause more damage than any other thing on the road. Last night at six o'clock, Lutton street was the best ashed street in New Castle.

The White population increased faster than the non-Whites only in the Southern and Pacific states, comparison of the 1930 and 1940 Census records reveals. In all other sections of the country, the non-Whites were gaining. The Census Bureau says that indicates a large-scale migration of non-Whites from the Southern to the Northern and Mid-western states.

Neutrality Act Section Suspended

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Senate today passed a bill suspending for duration of the war a section of the neutrality act which prohibits extension of credits to warring nations.

The measure is sought by the administration especially to aid Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Sen. Connally (D) Tex., chairman of the committee, promed to thrust the question of outright repeal of the neutrality act before the committee in the near future.

The bill goes to the House.

Charges 'Waste' Costs Millions

House Committee May Revise Method Of Letting Ordnance Plant Contracts

By JACKSON ELLIOTT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Charging that the taxpayers' bill for "waste" will run into millions of dollars under the present system of awarding war production contracts, the house military affairs committee today callel upon the war department to completely revise its method of letting contracts for ordnance plants.

The committee also recommended that the war department reorganize the control and supervision of the cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts and fix as excessive all profits over one per cent.

Practices Scored

A report made public following hearings by a subcommittee headed by Rep. Faddis (D) Pa., scored the practices of the Remington Arms Co., which resulted in a "defense broker" receiving big fees for farming out a portion of the arms company's commitments. The report declared that if Remington had dealt directly with the sub-contractor on a stamping die project, approximately $100,000 in fees to the broker, or a profit of 74 per cent, would have been saved.

The committee report told of work performed by Leon K. Shanack, who, as a representative of the Transcontinental Tool & Machine Co., secured $228,583 of orders from Remington and let them out to the Greenwich Tool & Machine Co., of New York.

Tremendous Profit

The committee disclosed that Shanack was able to obtain prices from the Greenwich company so low that he was able to realize the tremendous profit represented by the difference in the amount for which he billed Remington and the amount he paid for the dies. Shanack also received huge commissions from the Brewster Aeronautics Corp. and another company for work in connection with United States, British and Netherlands government contracts, the committee said.

Profits of $165,946 on orders totalling $465,542 were realized in similar negotiations by the Delisser Machine & Tool Co. for Remington contracts which were let to 26 independent machine shops.

The committee, which said that reliable defense brokers were of advantage to the war effort because of their expert knowledge of plants equipped to do the necessary types of work, sharply criticized the employment of agents under agreements which resulted in excessive profits.

The committee, which took the testimony of Lt. Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, as to his participation in defense contract work for Michigan firms, declared that no evidence was presented to affirm implications of Rep. Engel (R) Mich., that the state official had sought compensation for himself in contract agreements with the Brunswicke-Balke-Collender Co.

Compensation Plan For Bomb Raids Being Proposed

Nationwide Plan Submitted To Senate Committee By War And Navy Spokesmen

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—A nationwide compensation plan, covering death or injury of persons suffering from enemy bmbing or other attack, was proposed to a Senate Labor subcommittee today by spokesmen of War and Navy departments.

The program, which would also embrace compensation for workers on defense projects outside the United States and in factories within the country, is encompassed in a bill introduced by Sen. Pepper (D) Fla.

Major Reese F. Hill of the War department, said that the War and Navy departments are anxious to provide compensation for workers in defense factories.

"While the War and Navy departments are not primarily interested in civilians we believe that they should be included in the overall picture," he said.

Major Hill said that applications of benefits of State Workmen's Compensation acts is proposed for workers in factories of contractors in this country. Benefits on a lesser scale also would be paid for injuries in the home due to the enemy.

He explained that death benefits to families of persons suffering from bomb damage would range from $4,000 to $7,500, with determination by state compensation laws.

A housewife or other unemployed persons would be presumed to be earning $37.50 a month and would get compensation for injury at the rate of $25 a month. A child under 18 would draw $12 monthly. This would be in addition to full hospitalization.

Both War and Navy departments also endorsed provisions of the bill to pay benefits to families of civilian employes captured by the enemy.

Claim Singapore Great Naval Base Completely Destroyed

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Singapore's great naval base, built at a cost of some $300,000,000 over a period of twenty years, has been completely destroyed, the British radio declared today quoting a report from Reuters (British) News agency at Batavia.

It was used for less than a week as a base for a heavy fleet, it was added, from the time the Prince of Wales and the Repulse arrived in the Far East until they were sunk a few days later.

The British broadcast was recorded by CBS.

Honolulu Night Life Is Now But Memory

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HONOLULU, Feb. 11.—Honolulu's once gay night-life is now but a memory.

Everybody, from shoe clerk to millionaire playboy, and including the playgirls, is resigned to the blackout, and the other restrictions of martial law.

A great silence falls over Honolulu every night as the full tropic moon floods the sea and the beaches and casts quaint shadows through the palm trees onto the deserted streets. The only sound of footsteps are those of armed guards patroling public buildings or maybe those of a newspaper correspondent furtively picking his way toward the censor's office to file a story. Occasionally, an automobile with dimmed lights—maybe an army officer's car or a doctor's car—proceeds cautiously along an empty thoroughfare.

Closed are the bars, the night clubs, the hotel ballrooms, the semi-juke joints and other once-gay after-dark entertainment spots.

The community has become dealcoholized. Honolulu has been bone dry ever since military law went into effect after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor December 7. At this writing, however, there is talk that Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, the miltary governor and commanding general of the Hawaiian department, may relax the liquor regulations. He has admitted he is giving "serious consideration" to the suggestion.

But, meanwhile, private liquor supplies have run out and the average citizen is on a soft drink diet.

Curfew At 8 P. M.

The 6 p. m. curfew law has been changed and curfew is now effective at 8 p. m.

Everybody has developed a deep respect for the Provost (military) court. Fines and jail sentences have had a salutary effect on blackout violations.

Guards at public buildings and street intersections are not near as jumpy as they were immediately after the Jap attack on Hawaii. For a few days a number of citizens narrowly escaped being shot in their tracks. Which recalls a story of a sentry who, one night shortly after the war began, heard the approach of steps in the dark.

"Halt! Who goes there?" he shouted.

"Coffee—" replied a voice from the darkness, close to the entrance to the National Guard Armory.

After a moment or two, the voice added—"and sandwiches."

"Advance, coffee and sandwiches," said the sentry.

The community has been extremely law-abiding ever since martial law went into effect. People simply stayed home after dark.

Blackout Rooms

Every hme has a blackout room. There the family sits around at night, listening to the radio, playing cards or just talking. Folks who never went to bed before midnight now retire at 9 or 9:30 p. m. Everybody gets plenty of sleep.

Parlor games, soft drinks binges and ice cream parties send folks to their couches at an early hour.

Wives are beginning to compliment their husbands on their physical fitness. A lot of paunchy, middle-aged men who used to average six or seven highballs a day are able to pull in their belts in a notch or two and go about bragging about their stream-lined figures.

It would be a mistake to say, however, that no one has any fun after dark. At certain service and defense centers, where large numbers of men are congregated, there still are informal entertainments. These joy fests range from bridge and poker games to occasional movies and local talent shows.

Guests at a well-known beach hotel, a famed Waikiki landmark still dance in a blacked-out ballroom. A radio provides the music. But that doesn't mean a girl can rush out to a dance at will. This was demonstrated recently when the U. S. Engineers staged a dance at an auditorium. Before the night was over 50 men and 29 women had been arrested for alleged violation of the curfew law. They were charged with not having a proper night pass. The night passes are for those who are out on business.

If a girl goes to a hotel to dance it is advisable, according to those in the know, for her to make arrangements to get a room for the night for herself and chaperon.

Home parties are rare and are inadvisable unless the host makes arrangements so his guests can remain until dawn next day.

A few all-night cafes continue to operate. But they are allowed to run because they cater almost exclusively to defense workers whose jobs keep them up after the curfew hours.

It's hard sledding on the playboy, this war. But if he can keep out of range of Jap bombs the dearth of gay life in this once gay spot will do a lot for his health.
